Kenneson, Jim Street, 2003-07-24 Marketing the church is hot For many church leaders marketing might even be the first article of their creed which goes something like this We believe that our church determines its identity and mission through the tactics of marketing strategies Theologians Kenneson and Street offer a thoughtful and provocative protest with a foreword from Stanley Hauerwas The authors expose the theological presuppositions that inform the marketing project and help us to see that the marketer's presumption that form can be separated from content of the gospel betrays an understanding of the gospel that cannot help betraying the gift that is Christ The authors propose an alternative constructive account of the church's mission and purpose that is not based on exchange of value but on reminding us that the gospel is always a gift a gift that makes impossible any presumptions that there can be an exchange between human beings and God that is rooted in the satisfaction of our untrained needs The cross and resurrection challenge the world's understanding of what our needs should be Revolutionizing Christian Stewardship for the 21st Century Dan R. Compton, 2003-06-01 Not only do new church starts in significant numbers bring systemic change and renewal to mainline denominations but new church development brings similar change to individual aging congregations in their vicinity Author Stephen Compton argues that a decline in new church starts in the last half of the 20th century was the major contributor to the decline of mainline church groups not liberalism or lack of faith as is often cited He shows in this book how introducing considerable numbers of new congregations into these old denominations can cause these venerable institutions to revisit the meaning of church and congregation develop a clearer vision of their collective mission and grow in their ability to bring about positive change in the world In effect he contends new churches in an aging organization do not merely make it grow They make it change in ways that make it more effective in its mission and ministries This book will appeal to leaders across denominational lines including those not ordinarily called mainline and especially to pastors and leaders of older congregations Subject Guide to Books Reinventing American Protestantism Donald E. Its distinctive quality is the way in which it makes complex literary theories such as structuralism deconstruction and post modernism accessible to students by relating these theories to students own enjoyment in reading literature Each theory is illustrated by several applications of the theory to well known literary works Based on a reader response approach to literature In Search of Authority begins with an up to date account of the status of literary theory in the 21st century including a response to recent debates about the post theory question It concludes with a discussion of how an understanding of literary theory can lead to the empowerment of the individual reader and of how the authority of the professor can be gradually transferred to the student This third edition has been revised and updated throughout Each chapter ends with several questions to help students check their understanding of the key ideas in the chapter Tust the Facts Micheal L.
