I was counting down the seconds as I watched the clock. I didn't even hear what the teacher was saying. All I knew was I was ready to leave. It was Friday. I heard some chatter in the background, but I didn't listen. All I could think about was how good the food would be that night. I would order a thick juicy hamburger and some fries with extra ketchup. All of the waiters loved me at Jake's Hamburger. Stop. My parents had promised to take me there. Finally, the bell rang. I jumped up and ran to my locker. A lot of papers flew out. I just stuffed them back in, grabbed my things, and ran down the hallway. "Sarah," I heard my teacher call, "Don't forget about," as I ran out of the door. On Monday, I was back at school. "Oh, no, we are having a test," I thought. How could I have known? The teacher handed out the tests. I didn't know any of the answers to the multiplication or division problems.

1. Where was I when I was watching the clock?

2. Where were my parents taking me that night?

_____

3. What was Sarah's teacher probably trying to tell her?

_____

4. Do you think Sarah did well on the test? Why or why not?

_____

5. What class was Sarah probably in when she was watching the clock?

Reading Comprehension Top Returns:

Reading Across the Life Span Steven R. Yussen, M Cecil Smith, 2012-12-06 One of the liveliest areas of research in the social sciences is reading. Scholarly activity is currently proceeding along a number of different disciplinary lines addressing a multitude of questions and issues about reading. A short list of disciplines involved in the study of reading would include linguistics, psychology, education, history, and gerontology. Among the important questions being addressed are some long standing concerns: How are reading skills acquired? What are the basic components of reading skill? How do skilled readers differ from less skilled ones? What are the best ways to approach instruction for different groups of readers: young, beginning, readers, poor readers, with learning problems, and teenage and adult illiterates? How can reading skill best be measured? What standardized instruments and observational techniques are most useful? The large volume of textbooks and scholarly books that issue forth each year is clear evidence of the dynamic nature of the field. The purpose of this volume is to survey some of the best work going on in the field today and reflect what we know about reading as it unfolds across the life span. Reading is clearly an activity that spans each of our lives. Yet most accounts of it focus on some narrow period of development and fail to consider the range of questions that serious scholarship needs to address for us to have a richer understanding of reading. The book is divided into four parts: Language and Reading Comprehension Stanley F. Winitz, 1977 Reading in foreign language teaching and learning Andreas Hohmann, 2007 Studienarbeit aus dem Jahr 2002 im Fachbereich Anglistik Sonstiges Note 2 Universität Kassel Anglistik Veranstaltung The Interaction of Interest and Strategies in EFL Reading 34 Quellen im Literaturverzeichnis Sprache Deutsch Abstract When learning a language reading is one of the most important skills students need to acquire. In order to screen this importance this research paper focuses on reading comprehension dealing with it as a process with the relation of motivation as well as interest and reading comprehension and lastly with learning techniques and strategies concerning reading comprehension. After having given an overview of the theory of reading comprehension this paper wants to transfer the essential key thoughts into language teaching and learning in school.

Investigating the Role of Test Methods in Testing Reading Comprehension Jufang Kong, 2019-03-27 This book explores the construct of reading comprehension by means of two main test methods. Research methods like the think aloud protocol and eye tracking are employed to tap into test takers' cognitive processes while engaged in input text meaning building and in test tasks. The book is the first systematic attempt to explore test takers' cognitive processes through the control of test methods and presents findings in visualized form including processing route maps and eye fixation heat maps. It offers readers essential support with digging into and analyzing data that has to date remained difficult to access. Johnston, 1983 Drawing on work from a number of disciplines this volume brings together experimental and theoretical information relevant to the problems of assessing children's reading comprehension After a short introduction the first section defines reading comprehension presenting theoretical issues intended to provide an understanding of what is being measured and what that measurement means The second section covers factors that influence reading comprehension and its assessment stressing the importance of structure content and language of the text for the reader's comprehension of it particularly in the context of his or her background knowledge The third section deals with assessment methodology including its purposes the constraints on it and the cognitive demands and information content of different assessment methods The volume's final section charts new directions in reading comprehension assessment asking what can and should be assessed and how this assessment might be carried out and also addressing question construction and the characteristics and interpretation of tests JL Advances in Reading-Language Research Barbara A.
