He studies how semiotic theory can illuminate highly complex social and cultural practices. Writing Around the Ancient Mediterranean Philippa M. Steele, Philip J. Boyes, 2022-10-06 Writing in the ancient Mediterranean existed against a backdrop of very high levels of interaction and contact. In the societies around its shores writing was a dynamic practice that could serve many purposes from a tool used by elites to control resources and establish their power bases to a symbol of local identity and a means of conveying complex information and ideas. This volume presents a group of papers by members of the Contexts of and Relations between Early Writing Systems CREWS research team and visiting fellows offering a range of different perspectives and approaches to problems of writing in the ancient Mediterranean. They focus on practices viewing writing as something that people do within a wider social and cultural context and on adaptations considering the ways in which writing changed and was changed by the people using it. Hartog compares ancient Jewish commentaries on the Hebrew Bible with papyrus commentaries on the Iliad.
