School Library Journal ,2006 Learning and Awareness Ference Marton, Shirley A. Booth,1997 This book stems from more than 25 years of systematic research into the experience of learning undertaken by a research team trying to account for the obvious differences between more or less successful instances of learning in educational institutions The book offers an answer in terms of the discovery of critical differences in the structure of the learner's awareness and critical differences in the meaning of the learner's world The authors offer a detailed account of the empirical findings that give rise to theoretical insights and discuss the particular form of qualitative research that has been employed and developed The form of learning that is the object of study is considered to be the most fundamental form namely a change in the learner's way of seeing experiencing handling and understanding aspects of the world The need for rigorous analysis of learning of specific subject matter the individual construction of knowledge and its social and cultural embeddedness the defining features of rival approaches into research on learning are reconciled from the approach adopted here into an intertwined and whole experience of learning The learner's experience is always one of learning something in some way and in some context by holding the learner's experience of learning as the focus of study throughout and not studying the learning of the content and the acts and the context as separate and distinct focuses the content the act and the context remain united as constituents of the learner's experience. By empirically revealing critical differences in the ways of experiencing these aspects of learning and by developing a theoretical framework for the dynamics through which change comes about in the learner's awareness, this book gradually leads the reader to a powerful new view of learning. Equipped with the analytical tools and conceptual apparatus to be found in this book, the reader will be empowered to learn and to assist others to learn by creating environments conducive to the most fundamental form of learning: experiencing aspects of the world in new ways. American Book Publishing Record, 2005 YC Young Children, 2007 Journal for Research in Mathematics Education, 1996 New Visions for Linking Literature and Mathematics David Jackman, Phyllis Whitin, 2004. In this copublication by the National Council of Teachers of English and the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, David and Phyllis Whitin offer K-6 teachers a wealth of ideas for integrating literature and mathematics, including specific criteria for evaluating math-related books with emphasis on inquiry, critical thinking, diversity, and individual challenge; practical discussions about books and their use in K-6 classrooms; an in-depth look at problem posing and book pairs as effective strategies for engaging all students; explicit connections made to NCTM's Principles and Standards for School Mathematics and NCTE and IRA's Standards for the English Language Arts; interesting sidebars of extension activities and text sets; practical strategies for introducing math-related books to children; and an annotated list of the best math-related literature available. This is a book filled with numerous examples of children's work, many of which are drawn from widely diverse multicultural classrooms. Each chapter discusses a range of books and classroom applications to show how teachers can skillfully integrate such books to meet school objectives in language arts and mathematics. It is this dual perspective that makes the book unique. With its inviting tone and practical suggestions, New Visions for Linking Literature and Mathematics is an invaluable resource for the elementary school classroom. Journal of Education, 1896
