Current Progress and Challenges in the Development of a Hepatitis C Virus Vaccine Steven K.H. Fount, Thomas F. Baumert, 2019-01-22 More than 70 million people worldwide are infected with hepatitis C virus a major cause of liver cirrhosis liver failure and hepatocellular carcinoma world wide In the last decade this cancer has emerged as the second leading cause of cancer death and the global burden is increasing by two million new infections per year mainly due to injection drug use An effective vaccine will be the most effective means to contain the spread of this virus worldwide The articles in this Research Topic describe the progress that has been made towards a preventive vaccine and the challenges that still need to be overcome to ultimately achieve this goal Vaccine Design Michael F. Powell, Mark J. Newman, 2012-12-06 When my interest was first drawn to the phenomenon of vaccination for virus diseases in the late 1930s the state of the art and the science of vaccine design was not far advanced beyond the time of Jenner at the end of the 18th century and of Pasteur a century later In the 1930s it was still believed that for the induction of immunity to a virus caused disease the experience of infection was required but not for a toxin caused disease such as diphtheria or tetanus for which a chemically detoxified antigen was effective for immunization This prompted the question as to whether it might be possible to produce a similar effect for virus diseases using nonreplicating antigens When in the 1930s and 1940s it was found possible to propagate influenza viruses in the chick embryo protective effects could be induced without the need to experience infection by the use of a sufficient dose of a noninfectious influenza virus preparation Later in the 1940s it became possible to propagate polio and other viruses in cultures of human and monkey tissue and to immunize against other virus diseases in the same way Later with the advent of the era of molecular biology and genetic engineering antigens and vaccines could be produced in new and creative ways using either replicating or nonreplicating forms of the appropriate antigens for inducing a dose related protective state Semiconductor Manufacturing: Meeting the Challenges of the Global Marketplace Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, 1998 Mediaweek , 2007-10 DNA and Cell Biology , 2002 HIV and Cancer Immunotherapy: Similar Challenges and Converging Approaches Mirko Paiardini, Rafi Ahmed, Steven Grant Deeks, Kavita M.
