Energy Innovation for the Twenty-First Century Jim Skea, Renée van Diemen, Matthew Hannon, Evangelos Gazis, Aidan Rhodes, 2019 This book addresses the question how effective are countries in promoting the innovation needed to facilitate an energy transition At the heart of the book is a set of empirical case studies covering supply and demand side technologies at different levels of maturity in a variety of countries The case studies are set within an analytical framework encompassing the functions of technological innovation systems and innovation metrics The book concludes with lessons and recommendations for effective policy intervention Sharing tips for rice, chicken and vegetable production: Do voice messages and social learning complement extension services? Almanzar, Miguel, de Brauw, Alan, Nakasone,

Eduardo,2021-07-01 Considerable resources are allocated to agricultural extension around the world with questionable cost effectiveness An obvious question is whether information and communication technologies can be used to push agricultural extension messages effectively at a lower cost Based on a clustered randomized control trial we evaluate a pilot in which farmers receive information about agricultural production on rice vegetables and chicken rearing via mobile phone voice messages Our experimental design included groups of households without and with farmer group membership We evaluate whether farmers received the information learned it shared it with non recipients and used it and how the effects of the information campaign on these outcomes changes with being part of an existing farmer group and the proportion of the village population receiving information We find farmers in the information treatment groups were more knowledgeable about the practices promoted believe it helped them produce more and shared it with others The information campaign was more effective for rice and to a lesser extent chicken rearing than for vegetables We do not find differential effects by farmer group membership We find that the amount of information sent to the village increases information diffusion but the speed of sharing the information is similar across treatment groups and by different saturation rates We conclude that targeted and simple information campaigns can help supplement the information needs of farmers in a cost effective manner independently of their participation in farmer groups or extension programs

Regulatory Problems and Disorders in Early Childhood: Aetiology, Contextual Factors, Developmental Outcomes and Pathways, and Treatment Options

Anna Katharina Georg, Ayten Bilgin, Julia Jaekel,2025-01-08 Regulatory problems defined as excessive crying sleeping or feeding problems are among the most common concerns of parents with children 0 5 years old These problems are typically understood within the context of the parent child relationship however the complex underlying mechanisms that explain the occurrence and continuation as well as long term outcomes of regulatory problems are still poorly understood Despite some promising treatment options important knowledge gaps remain to be addressed which will inform evidence based practice for services of children aged 0 5 With this Research Topic we aim to bring together research from different countries and from multidisciplinary research backgrounds on the topic of regulatory problems and disorders We particularly encourage research that focuses on observed parent child interactions in relation to regulatory problems We view regulatory problems as a transdiagnostic biopsychosocial concept covering excessive crying sleeping and or feeding and eating problems However studies with a focus on any of these problems are also encouraged The New York Times Index ,2008 Business
