Unwarranted Influence James Ledbetter,2011-01-17 In Dwight D Eisenhower s last speech as president on January 17 1961 he warned America about the military industrial complex a mutual dependency between the nation's industrial base and its military structure that had developed during World War II After the conflict ended the nation did not abandon its wartime economy but rather the opposite Military spending has steadily increased giving rise to one of the key ideas that continues to shape our country's political landscape In this book published to coincide with the fiftieth anniversary of Eisenhower's farewell address journalist James Ledbetter shows how the government military contractors and the nation's overall economy have become inseparable Some of the effects are beneficial such as cell phones GPS systems the Internet and the Hubble Space Telescope all of which emerged from technologies first developed for the military But the military industrial complex has also provoked agonizing questions Does our massive military establishment bigger than those of the next ten largest combined really make us safer How much of our perception of security threats is driven by the profit making motives of military contractors To what extent is our foreign policy influenced by contractors financial interests Ledbetter uncovers the surprising origins and the even more surprising afterlife of the military industrial complex an idea that arose as early as the 1930s and shows how it gained traction during World War II the Cold War and the Vietnam era and continues even today The Urban League Review ,1986 The Nation ,1991
