Perceiving, Sensing, and Knowing Robert J. Swartz, 2023-11-15 This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1965 Knowledge,

Perception and Memory C. Ginet, 1975-06-30 In this book I present what seem to me at the moment to be right answers to some of the main philosophical questions about the topics mentioned in the title and I argue for them where I can I hope that what I say may be of interest both to those who have already studied these questions a lot and to those who haven't There are several important topics in epistemology to which I give little or no attention here such as the nature of a proposition the major classifications of propositions necessary and contingent a priori and a posteriori analytic and synthetic general and particular the nature of understanding a proposition the nature of truth the nature and justification of the various kinds of inference deductive inductive and probably others but enough is covered to one degree or another that the book might be of use in a course in epistemology Earlier versions of some of the material in Chapters II III and IV were some of the material in Ginet 1970 An earlier version of the part of Chapter VII on memory connection was a paper that I profited from reading and discussing in philosophy discussion groups at Cornell University SUNY at Albany and Syracuse University in 1972-73 I do not like to admit how long I have been working on this book Perceptual Knowledge Georges Dicker, 2012-12-06 This book grew out of the lectures that I prepared for my students in epistemology at SUNY College at Brockport beginning in 1974 The conception of the problem of perception and the interpretation of the sense datum theory and its supporting arguments that are developed in Chapters One through Four originated in these lectures The rest of the manuscript was first written during the 1975-1976 academic year while I held an NEH Fellowship in Residence for College Teachers at Brown University and during the ensuing summer under a SUNY Faculty Research Fellowship I wish to express my sincere gratitude to the National Endowment for the Humanities and to the Research Foundation of the State University of New York for their support of my research I am grateful to many former students colleagues and friends for their stimulating constructive comments and criticisms Among the former students whose reactions and objections were most helpful are Richard Motroni Donald Callen Hilary Porter and Glenn Shaikun Among my colleagues at Brockport I wish to thank Kevin Donaghy and Jack Glickman for their comments and encouragement I am indebted to Eli Hirsch for reading and commenting most helpfully on the entire manuscript to Peter M Brown for a useful correspondence concerning key arguments in Chapters Five and Seven to Keith Lehrer for a criticism of one of my arguments that led me to make some important revisions and to Roderick M Disaster Intelligent Perception and Emergency Command of Power Grid Zhen Yu, Jie Feng, Shiyang Tang, Zeyu Liu, Yiran Yan, Na Luo, 2023-11-17 This open access book addresses the current technical problems of low efficiency of emergency site information collection lack of flexibility of emergency information interaction lack of fusion analysis technology and disaster loss prediction model and low intelligence of emergency auxiliary decision making The content contains research on multiple information collection technology of power grid disaster loss fusion analysis and prediction technology of power grid disaster loss information and real time information interaction technology between emergency site and command center in this work This book illustrates the process of developing a prototype system for grid disaster perception and emergency command which realizes the functions of grid disaster perception and emergency auxiliary decision making and visualization command The prototype intelligent perception and emergency command system for power grid disasters has been piloted in several units It provided support for disaster loss prediction disaster damage perception and emergency command auxiliary decision making in the earthquake in Sichuan China as well as the heavy rainfall in Zhejiang China and Typhoon No 9 Lupi that registered in Fujian China which significantly improved the emergency disposal Work efficiency

Perception Metaphors Laura J. Speed,Carolyn O'Meara,Lila San Roque,Asifa Majid,2019-02-15 Metaphor allows us to think and talk about one thing in terms of another ratcheting up our cognitive and expressive capacity It gives us concrete terms for abstract phenomena for example ideas become things we can grasp or let go of Perceptual experience characterised as physical and relatively concrete should be an ideal source domain in metaphor and a less likely target But is this the case across diverse languages And are some sensory modalities perhaps more concrete than others This volume presents critical new data on perception metaphors from over 40 languages including many which are under studied Aside from the wealth of data from diverse languages modern and historical spoken and signed a variety of methods e g natural language corpora experimental and theoretical approaches are brought together This collection highlights how perception metaphor can offer both a bedrock of common experience and a source of continuing innovation in human communication

Der sinnliche Gehalt der Wahrnehmung Richard Schantz, 1990 This work is a study of an important and difficult question in the theory of perception how is the sensory content of Perception to be understood with out conflicting with basic Convictions in ontology epistemology and the theory of science The modern history of the philosophical theory of Perception in a sense is a history of unsuccessful attempts to find a place for the sensory content of perception in a coherent conception of the world and of our knowledge of the world The present work considers the entire history of this Problem The author discusses not only the relevant historical texts of Locke Berkeley Hume Mill and Russell but also the recent literature on perception He discusses in detail the different variants of the sense datum theory the theory of representation and the different forms of phenomenalism and convincingly points out their internal incoherence The author criticizes Amstrong s and Pitcher s attempt to cope with the Problem of the sensory content of perception by reducing this content to the different modalities of belief Schantz himself defends a version of the adverbial theory of Perception holding that in dealing with the sensory content of perception we are involved with states of persons which we best express by adverbial constructions This Position inspired by Chisholm and Sellars is set forth in a more detailed way than is usual in the existing literature The author is able to show finally that the adverbial theory is compatible with a form of scientific realism this leads to a new and original defense of the traditional distinction between primary and secondary qualities Of interest to Philosophers logicians linguists psychologists
