The Respiratory Tract in Pediatric Critical Illness and Injury Derek S. Wheeler, Hector R. Wong, Thomas P. Shanley, 2008-12-18 The principal role of the respiratory system is to permit efficient exchange of respiratory gases O<sub>2</sub> and CO<sub>2</sub> with the environment The respiratory system is unique in that it is constantly exposed to a barrage of foreign substances from both the internal environment at any one point in time approximately one half of the cardiac output is received by the lungs and the external environment with each breath the respiratory tract is exposed to pollutants viruses bacteria smoke etc According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention diseases of the respiratory system were the seventh and eighth leading causes of deaths in children aged 1 to 19 years in 2003 1 Dr George A Gregory one of the founding fathers of pediatric critical care medicine once estimated that acute respiratory failure accounts for nearly 50% of all admissions to the pediatric intensive care unit PICU 2 Just as important are the many diseases that affect the respiratory system that are not associated with acute respiratory failure but nevertheless constitute a major portion of the practice of pediatric critical care medicine some of which account for significant morbidity and mortality 3 Once again we would like to dedicate this textbook to our families and to the physicians and nurses who provide steadfast care every day in pediatric intensive care units across the globe Derek S Wheeler Hector R Wong Thomas P     The Respiratory Tract in Pediatric Critical Illness and Injury Derek S. Technological and scientific advances during the last decade have resulted in a fundamental change in the way we view disease processes such as sepsis shock acute lung injury and traumatic brain injury Pediatric intensivists have been both witness to and active participants in bringing about these changes As the understanding of the pathogenesis of these diseases reaches the cellular and molecular levels the gap between critical care medicine and molecular biology will disappear It is imperative that all physicians caring for critically ill children in this new era have a thorough understanding of the applicability of molecular biology to the care of these patients at the bedside in order to keep up with the rapidly evolving field of critical care medicine To the same extent the practice of critical care medicine is in the midst of fundamental change In keeping with the Institute of Medicine's report Crossing the Quality Chasm the care of critically ill and injured children needs to be safe evidence based equitable efficient timely and family centered 1 2 In the following pages these changes in our specialty are discussed in greater scope and detail offering the reader fresh insight into not only where we came from but also where we are going as a specialty
