What Were Little Girls and Boys Made Of? Laura S. Struminger, 1983-01-01 Primary School Books were vehicles by which authors in nineteenth century France hoped to shape the future These authors members of the middle class believed in reason and progress and in their own ability to ascertain what was reasonable and to enforce progress Not surprisingly they did not always get the cooperation of the people whom they were trying to lead to a civilized life Peasants who made up the largest population of those needing progress in the view of the middle class did not accept new ideas unquestionably They worked out their own compromises evasions and selections from the portrait of the good life presented to them in the village primary schools The books of Zulma Carraud are particularly interesting because they were directed specifically to socializing rural children to modern gender roles Annotated excerpts from her best selling books La Petite Jeanne ou le devoir and Maurice ou le travail highlight the growing difference between women's work which is referred to as duty and is portrayed as an expansion of woman's nature and men's work which remains a duty to his family country and God but more importantly becomes a source of fulfillment provides a sense of achievement and of self worth In Carraud's books men use their skills to tame nature to create civilization in an ever expanding field of endeavors while women's work remains confined to child nurture house care care of the sick and elderly The process of inculcating new values is traced with the aid of school inspectors reports the letters and diaries of teachers and a collection of notebooks kept by rural pupils These documents provide a rare view of the
