Van Dyke, Susan E. Schopp, 2018-03-13 It is not often recognized that China was one of the few places in the early modern world where all merchants had equal access to the market This study shows that private traders regardless of the volume of their trade were granted the same privileges in Canton as the large East India companies All of these companies relied to some extent on private capital to finance their operations Without the investments from individuals the trade with China would have been greatly hindered Competitors large and small traded alongside each other while enemies traded alongside enemies Buddhists Muslims Catholics Protestants Parsees Armenians Hindus and others lived and worked within the small area in the western suburbs of Canton designated for foreigners Cantonese shopkeepers were not allowed to discriminate against any foreign traders In fact the shopkeepers were generally working in a competitive environment providing customer oriented service that generated goodwill friendship and trust These contributed to the growth of the trade as a whole While many private traders were involved in smuggling opium others such as Nathan Dunn were much opposed to it The case studies in this volume demonstrate that fortunes could be made in China by trading in legitimate items just as successfully as in illegitimate ones which tellingly suggests that the rapid spread of opium smuggling in China could be a result of inadequate rather than excessive regulation by the Qing government For this absorbing book Van Dyke and Schopp have convened excellent scholars junior and senior to throw new light on the foreign merchants outside the East India companies who shaped China's engagement with the world at least as much as the companies men did if not more The
