Science Since Babylon Enlarged Edition:

Science Since Babylon Derek John de Solla Price, 1975 Professor Price has enlarged his widely known and influential study of science and the humanities to include much new material extraordinarily broad in its range from ancient automata talismans and symbols to the differences of modern science and technology Science since Babylon is now more fascinating and useful than ever to anyone concerned with the humanistic understanding of science Originating in a series of five public lectures delivered under the auspices of the history department at Yale University in 1959 this book is an investigation of the circumstances and consequences of certain vital decisions relating to scientific crises which have the world to its present state of scientific and technological development Not just another book on History of Science it is a plea an exemplification for a whole new range of studies to take its place in the territory between the humanities and the sciences The chapter on Diseases of Science has received much public attention as an analysis of the present structure and probable future of the organization of science The author documents his study with accounts of his own researches in his specific fields of interest relating them to the crises which he believes to be of paramount importance

On Scientific Discovery, Mirko Drazen Grmek, Robert S. Cohen, Guido Cimino, 2012-12-06

The 1977 lectures of the International School for the History of Science at Erice in Sicily were devoted to that vexing but inexorable problem: the nature of scientific discovery. With all that has been written by scientists themselves, by historians and philosophers and social theorists, by psychologists and psychiatrists, by logicians and novelists, the problem remains elusive. Happily we are able to bring the penetrating lectures from Erice that summer to a wider audience in this volume of theoretical investigations and detailed case studies. The ancient and lovely town of Erice in Northwest Sicily, 750 m above the sea, was famous throughout the Mediterranean for its temple of the goddess of nature, Venus Erycina, said to have been built by Daedalus. As philosophers and historians of the natural sciences, we hope that the stimulating atmosphere of Erice will to some extent be transmitted by these pages. We are especially grateful to that generous and humane physician and historian of science, Dr. Vincenzo Cappelletti, himself a creative scientist, for his collaboration in bringing this work to completion. We admire his intelligent devotion to fostering creative interaction between scientists and historians of science as Director of the School of History of Science within the great Ettore Majorana Centre for Scientific Culture at Erice as well as for his imaginative leadership of the Istituto della Enciclopedia Italiana Wissenschaft als allgemeine Arbeit H.
