Peasants, Collectives, and Choice Louis G. Putterman, 1986 Tests the voluntary collectivisation hypothesis by applying models of economic behaviour in collective agricultural enterprises to the understanding of the Tanzanian experience analyses the problems met by Tanzania in its aim of self transformation into a nation of collective villages Peasants in Power Philip Verwimp, 2013-06-03 This book shows how Rwanda's development model and the organisation of genocide are two sides of the same coin In the absence of mineral resources the elite organised and managed the labour of peasant producers as efficient as possible In order to stay in power and benefit from it the presidential clan chose a development model that would not change the political status quo When the latter was threatened the elite invoked the preservation of group welfare of the Hutu called for Hutu unity and solidarity and relied on the great mass rubanda nyamwinshi for the execution of the genocide A strategy as simple as it is horrific The genocide can be regarded as the ultimate act of self preservation through annihilation under the veil of self defense Why did tens of thousands of ordinary people massacred tens of thousands other ordinary people in Rwanda in 1994 What has agricultural policy and rural ideology to do with it What was the role of the Akazu the presidential clan around president Habyarimana Did the civil war cause the genocide And what insights can a political economy perspective offer Based on more than ten years of research and engaging with competing and complementary arguments of authors such as Peter Uvin Alison Des Forges Scott Strauss Ren Lemarchand Filip Reyntjens Mahmood Mamdani and Andr Guichaoua the author blends economics politics and agrarian studies to provide a new way of understanding the nexus between development and genocide in Rwanda Students and practitioners of development as well as everyone interested in the causes of violent conflict and genocide in Africa and around the world will find this book compelling to read Public Choice and Rural Development Clifford S. Russell, Norman K.

Nicholson, 2016-03-17 This title originally published in 1981 explores the difficult and at times volatile relationship between public choice and rural development in developing countries The book is organised into three major sections the first section examines important general themes the second describes how public choice and rural development intertwine in some areas of concern to aid donors and finally the third section revisits the major themes discussed in the book and offers further understanding to the critical questions and problems at hand It is a valuable resource for students interested in environmental studies and development studies Urban Village Redevelopment in Beijing, China Ran Liu, 2024-06-12 The book provides a multi stage assessment of the changing housing opportunities of migrant workers in the three stages of Beijing's urban village development emergence erasure and preservation The volume re theorizes Henry Lefebvre's notion of the right to the city as a largely property based concept that falls within the city's hybrid tenure matrix of varying degrees of tenure security and formality that is undergoing entrepreneurialization or gentrification This is another highly valuable contribution to China studies from the geographical perspective of the territorial politics at play in the process of urban village redevelopment which has fostered a new propertied landowning class as winners while moving low wage migrants. The book takes the reader on a fascinating journey from peri urban villages to IT worker villages to artists villages revealing a restless landscape of urbanism and state centered governance as well as bottom up counterplots. The fieldwork explores the contradictions of urban village redevelopment in Beijing. On the one hand it is state dominated and yet creates new housing opportunities for migrants on the other it disrupts old orders but also encourages new forms of grassroots alliances. The empirical studies of Beijing's urban villages enrich Henry Lefebvre's discourse on planetary urbanisation. Gilles Deleuze and Félix Guattari's notion of the rhizome and Elinor Ostrom's ideas on the wise management of the commons. Ökonomie der Arbeitsverfassung Marion Weber, 1996 Revolutions as Organizational Change Baohui Zhan, 2015-09-01 By comparing peasant revolutions in Hunan and Jiangxi between 1926 and 1934 Revolutions as Organizational Change offers a new organizational perspective on peasant revolutions. Utilizing newly available historical materials in the People's Republic of China in the reform era it challenges the established view that the great Chinese revolution of the twentieth century was a revolution made by the Chinese Communist Party the CCP. The book begins with a puzzle presented by the two peasant revolutions. While outside mobilization by the CCP was largely absent in Hunan peasant revolutionary behaviors were spontaneous and radical. In Jiangxi however despite intense mobilization by the CCP peasants remained passive and conservative. This study seeks to resolve the puzzle by examining the roles of communal cooperative institutions in the making of peasant revolutions. Historically peasant communities in many parts of the world were regulated by powerful cooperative institutions to confront environmental challenges. This book argues that different communal organizational principles affect peasants' perceptions of the legitimacy of their communal orders. Agrarian rebellions can be caused by peasants' attempts to restructure unjust and illegitimate communal organizational orders while legitimate communal organizational orders can powerfully constrain the mobilization by outside revolutionary agents such as the CCP. In this thorough comparative account of the peasant risings in Hunan and Jiangxi and the role of the Communist Party Professor Zhang casts new light on both the risings themselves and what they can tell us about peasant risings in general. This work is strong in both theory and detailed historical research. Richard Rigby professor China Institute Australian National University Professor Zhang has beautifully crafted a comparative study of divergent peasant revolutions in two Chinese regions during Mao's long revolutionary war. He brings to this task a broad and deep knowledge about revolutionary theory and also a razor like analytical sensibility which enables him to examine the pros and cons of existing perspectives.
