Prehistory Of Agriculture New Experimental And Ethnographic Approaches:

Prehistory of Agriculture Patricia C. Anderson, 1999-07-01 The twenty eight contributors to this book show how experimental and ethnographic approaches are being used to shed new light on the process of domestication and harvesting techniques tools and technology in the period just before and just after the appearance of agriculture The book takes an explicitly comparative approach with chapters on SW Asia Europe Australia and Africa Agricultural and Pastoral Landscapes in Pre-Industrial Society Fèlix Retamero, Inge Schjellerup, Althea Davies, 2014-12-01 Through a series of case studies this third volume in the Earth series deals with the technological constraints and innovations that enabled societies to survive and thrive across a range of environmental conditions The contributions are structured into three sections to draw out particular commonalities and contrasts in the choices made by pre industrial communities in the construction of varied landscapes and cultural heritage Landnam from the Old Norse for taking of land deals with colonization including the drivers and processes through which colonizers developed an understanding of the productive potential and limitations of their new lands Fields and field systems Field walls are a distinctive and apparently timeless characteristic of many pre industrial farming landscapes but they present many the challenges to their study such as the effects of plowing abandonment and land use change and of urban development in fertile lowland zones which may eradicate reduce or conceal past systems of land use and division The importance of indirect and proxy evidence is illustrated and the value of interdisciplinary and modeling approaches emphasized Agro pastoralism focuses on the complex time space adaptations devised for managing cultivation and livestock production particularly the need to prevent stock incursions into arable fields during the growing season whilst making effective use of seasonal grazing resources The contributions focus on mountainous areas where temporary migrations in the form of transhumance provided access to a diversity of resources based around seasonal constraints on their availability and productivity Explaining and Exploring Diversity in Agricultural Technology Annelou van Gijn, John Whittaker, Patricia C. Anderson, 2014-08-29 This volume is the outcome of collaborative European research among archaeologists archaeobotanists ethnographers historians and agronomists and frequently uses experiments in archaeology It aims to establish new common ground for integrating different approaches and for viewing agriculture from the standpoint of the human actors involved Each chapter provides an interdisciplinary overview of the skills used and the social context of the pursuit of agriculture highlighting examples of tools technologies and processes from land clearance to cereal processing and food preparation This is the second of three volumes in the EARTH monograph series The dynamics of non industrial agriculture 8 000 years of resilience and innovation which shows the great variety of agricultural practices in human terms in their social political cultural and legal contexts Prehistory of Agriculture Patricia C. Anderson, 1999 The twenty eight contributors to this book show how experimental and ethnographic approaches are being used to shed new light on the process of domestication and harvesting techniques tools and technology in the period just before and just after the appearance of agriculture The book takes an explicitly comparative approach with chapters on SW Asia Europe Australia and Africa Plants and People Alexandre Chevalier, Elena Marinova, Leonor Pena-Chocarro, 2014-04-30 This first monograph in the EARTH The Dynamics of Non Industrial Agriculture 8 000 years of Resilience and Innovation series approaches the great variety of agricultural practices in human terms It focuses on the relationship between plants and people the complexity of agricultural processes and their organisation within particular communities and societies Collaborative European research among archaeologists archaeobotanists ethnographers historians and agronomists using a broad analytical scale of investigation seeks to establish new common ground for integrating different approaches By means of interdisciplinary examples this book showcases the relationship between people and plants across wide ranging and diverse spatial and temporal milieus including crop diversity the use of wild foodstuffs social context status and choices of food plants

Ilipinar Excavations 3 J. J. Roodenberg, Songül Alpaslan Roodenberg, 2008 This volume is the third in a series of monographs on the archaeological investigations at Il p nar in Northwest Anatolia which were carried out by the Netherlands Institute at Leiden Istanbul from 1987 to 2002 The excavations of Il p nar supplemented with soundings at nearby Mente e have yielded new insight into the spread of Neolithic farming from the Near East to the European continent and in particular has thrown light on the position of the eastern Marmara region in terms of intercultural relations In this book emphasis is laid on the inhabitants of prehistoric Il p nar their survival strategies and mortuary practices The contents include final reports on the cemeteries dating to the Neolithic Early Chalcolithic Late Chalcolithic and Early Bronze periods respectively insofar as possible in both the archaeological and anthropological aspects Moreover it treats the lowest occupation levels general building techniques faunal and floral remains pottery and flint industries in an attempt to present a comprehensive image of human activity on a mound that intermittently bears vestiges of men over a time period of 7000 years It concludes with an account on the fauna of basal Mente e and a full excavation report on the Early Bronze Age hamlet of Hac lartepe

The Ilipinar Excavations J. J. Roodenberg, L. C. Thissen, 1995 This second volume on the excavations at Ilipinar in Northwestern Anatolia comprises studies on the pottery of Ilipinar s early farming period e g the phases X through VB Various authors present accounts of the architectural remains of phases VI through VB scattered along the west flank of the mound while a full record is given of the radiocarbon dates covering the whole prehistoric occupation of this multiperiod mound In addition to reports on the chipped stone industry a study is included on vegetational remains from this Neolithic Early Chalcolithic settlement in the framework of Late Quarternary vegetation of Western Turkey Acts of the XIVth UISPP Congress, University of Liège, Belgium, 2-8 September 2001 : Colloque/Symposium 1.4 Xavier Terradas, 2005 Arguing that flint tools alone reveal little about prehistoric societies these eight papers use ethnological data to reconstruct the cultural economic and social context of these tools Taken from Symposium 1 The Greek Mesolithic Nena

Galanidou,2003 This book is the first major review of the Mesolithic age of Greece writes Colin Renfrew If the Franchthi Cave publications represent a first milestone in mesolithic studies in the Aegean this volume certainly constitutes a second It establishes a perspective going beyond that of the single key site allowing earlier finds such as those from Sidari on Corfu to be re assessed and including more recent discoveries at the Theopetra Cave at the Cave of Cyclope on Youra and from the Klisoura Gorge The book moreover develops a number of methodological advances along with a careful review of the chronology It embarks also upon detailed investigations of the fauna and microfauna

Transition from Foraging to Farming in Northeast China Weiming Jia,2007 The main aim of this book is to demonstrate that based on a practicable method of tool complex analysis and using as a framework the model of transition from foraging to farming such as the availability model can be tested with common archaeological data Through case studies in northeast China this book has made a contribution to this aim and has provided a useful method to study prehistoric economy relying on archaeological discoveries The theoretical approach in this book has suggested that the economic style chosen by prehistoric societies is retrievable from the archaeological record without direct reference of faunal and floral data This makes this method particularly useful for regions and periods where no faunal and floral information available This method for retrieving economic information is also without direct reference to ethnographic analogy This study shows the potential significance of the use of common archaeological data without directly using highly technological equipment and a large amount of scientific analysis This makes this method particularly valuable for the research in most archaeological records in China and elsewhere when there are few modern technologies methodologies and research conditions available Chapter 1 outlines the major purpose of this book and background of current archaeological studies in northeast China in relation to transition from foraging to farming Chapter 2 reviews the studies in transition to farming worldwide including transition research in the west China and northeast China A summary of Chinese archaeology in its method and theory is also included Chapter 3 establishes the author's methodological framework in studies of transition to farming in northeast China including the explanation of tool complex analysis interpretation of the results of this analysis and establishing a baseline based on studies in the transition to farming in central China Chapter 4 reconstructs Palaeo environment in northeast China involving sea level temperature and precipitation and vegetation changes during the Holocene in northeast China Mainly based on pollen data including present pollen reference studies of the summer monsoon this reconstruction provides an outline of environmental changes in northeast China Chapters 5 to 8 are case studies Based on the archaeological records in the four regions the Liao River region Liaodong peninsula Song Nen plain and Changbaishan mountains in northeast China they use the author's methodological frame work to analyse the process of transition to farming in each region to establish the patterns of transition in northeast China Chapter 9 synthetically analyses the process and model of the transition to farming in northeast China including the analysis of transition patterns the relationship between environmental changes technological level and agricultural transition in northeast China Some tentative explanations of the causes of the transition to farming are also included Chapter 10 extends some theoretical discussions including discussion of the relationship between environment and economic styles in different transition models The potential usage of tool complex analysis in other regions is discussed in this Chapter and followed by some suggestions in the future studies such as transition to animal farming transition within one archaeological culture and studies on individual species of plants and animals Also the suggestion of further studies needed such as using the same method of tool complex analysis comparing to economies in present ethnic groups Journal of Archaeological Science Society for Archaeological Sciences (U.S.), 2003

"Prehistoric Technology" 40 Years Later Laura Longo, Natalia Skakun, 2008 Proceedings of the International Congress Verona Italy 20-23 April 2005 This book includes papers from the congress Prehistoric Technology 40 Years Later Functional Studies and the Russian Legacy held in Verona Italy 20-23 April 2005 Sessions Methodology seven contributions Hunter Gatherers nine contributions Food Producers eight contributions Complex Polities six contributions Burial Context six contributions Posters thirty two contributions Round Table eight contributions Edited by Laura Longo and Natalia Skakun with the assistance of Massimo Saracino and Martina Dalla Riva Monograph, 1999 Plants in Neolithic Britain and Beyond Andrew S. Fairbairn, 2000 Plant centred issues are fundamental in the definitions and explanations of the Neolithic as a phenomenon The meeting of the Neolithic Studies Group from which this volume developed aimed to provide a forum for the wide range of approaches now applied to Neolithic archaeobotany at site and landscape scales of resolution The Art and Archaeology of Sri Lanka Leelananda Prematilleka, 2007 Roman Foodprints at Berenike René T. J. Cappers, 2006 During the Graeco Roman period Berenike served as a gateway to the outside world together with Myos Hormos Commodities were imported from Africa south of the Sahara Arabia and India into the Greek and Roman Empire the importance of both harbors evidenced by several contemporary sources Between 1994 and 2002 eight excavation seasons were conducted at Berenike by the University of Delaware and Leiden University the Netherlands This book presents the results of the archaeobotanical research of the Roman deposits It is shown that the study of a transit port such as Berenike located at the southeastern fringe of the Roman Empire is highly effective in producing new information on the import of all kinds of luxury items In addition to the huge quantities of black pepper plant remains of more than 60 cultivated plant species could be evidenced several of them for the first time in an archaeobotanical context For each plant species detailed information on its possible origin its use its preservation qualities and the Egyptian subfossil record is provided The interpretation of the cultivated plants including the possibilities of cultivation in Berenike proper is supported by ethnoarchaeobotanical research that has been conducted over the years The reconstruction of the former environment is based on the many wild plant species that were found in Berenike and the study of the present desert vegetation Islands on the Plains Marcel Kornfeld, Alan J. Osborn, 2003 Scattered throughout the Great Plains are many isolated areas of varying size and ecology quite distinct from the surrounding grasslands Such spaces can be uplands like the Black Hills low hills like the Nebraska Sand Hills or linear areas such as shallow river valleys and deeply incised canyons While the notion of islands is not a new one among ecologists its application in Plains archaeology is The contributors to this volume seek to illustrate the different ways that the spatial structural and temporal nature of islands conditioned the behavior and adaptation of past Plains peoples This as a first step toward a more detailed analysis of habitat variation and its effects on Plains cultural dynamics and evolution Although the emphasis is on ecology several chapters also address social and ideological islands in the form of sacred sites and special hunting grounds

Memoirs of the Queensland Museum ,2006 Archaeology, History, and Culture in Palestine and the Near East Albert E. Glock,1999 Albert Glock Director of Birzen University s Institute of Archaeology was among the first archaeologists to promote and foster research into the archaeological record of Palestinian Arabs His life ended tragically in 1992 but his vision continues today as witnessed in this collection of essays This volume commemorates Albert Glock s contribution to archaeology and education in Palestine and the Near East BOOK JACKET
