Science, Technology and Global Governance John R. De La Mothe, 2014-04-23 Science technology and innovation have long been key factors in the competitive advantage of nations Today however the new international political economy is being increasingly driven by science and technology in new ways Integration globalization and internationalization have all become watchwords for a series of dynamic processes in which science and technology are deeply implicated As a result not only are the policies of national governments being exposed in terms of the limits of their sovereignty but science and technology are being increasingly implicated in a wide array of public issues ranging from security privacy development and economic growth to employment environment foreign policy and geopolitics Clearly in today's emerging world the ways in which governments organize their science and technology policy their science and technology intelligence and their research advisory structures and resources matter more today than ever before In turn the contract between science and democracy is being rapidly redefined This book is the first to comprehensively discuss these critical issues University-Industry Partnerships in MIT, Cambridge, and Tokyo Sachi Hatakenaka,2004-08-02 The purpose of this study is to identify the nature of change taking place in university industry partnerships to understand the underlying factors that influence that change and to explore the underlying process of change Three in depth case studies are considered that of MIT Cambridge University and Tokyo University to compare their experiences in developing new types of university industry relationships Hatakenaka argues that internal and external organizational boundaries have influenced the evolution of the new types of relationships and that the three universities have defined these boundaries differently
