Theories of Human Development Michael G. Green, John A. Piel, 2015-07-14 The authors have grouped the theories into three classical families which differ in their views relative to the prime motives underlying human nature They show how theories are specific examples of more general points of view called paradigms The theories chosen to represent the three paradigms the Endogenous Paradigm Exogenous Paradigm and the Constructivist Paradigm were selected because they met four criteria importance as judged by academic and research psychologists fertility as judged by the amount of research the theory has generated scope as judged by the variety of phenomena the various theories explain family resemblance as judged by how well each theory represents its paradigm The authors present the paradigm case in the lead chapter for each paradigm This paradigm case is the best example for the paradigm The authors explain why paradigm cases are important and give them more detailed treatment than other theories in the same paradigm
