trade publishing gold with his previous three books based on surveys of people's opinions, habits and sexual practices. His fourth book Just Married, cowritten with Marlo Grey, is sure to continue that success. The book captures the provocative and eye-opening results of a recent national survey of newlyweds. The questions in Sinrod's intriguing survey range from humorous and lighthearted to steamy and private: Was it love at first sight? When you were proposed to, were you actually ready to accept? When you slept together the first time, did he/she meet your expectations? What is your spouse's best and worst quality? The revelations within Just Married are just as scintillating. Eighty-three percent of the couples surveyed kissed on the first date while 17 percent slept together. Twenty-seven percent of wives said their husband leaves the toilet seat up more often than not. Forty-six percent had a non-traditional wedding, including one who said, "My husband was in a total body cast on our wedding day. We couldn't have sex for two more weeks." The author of Do You Do It with The Lights On, which has sold more than 100,000 copies, has penned another winner with Just Married, a collection of fascinating information and creative responses that will appeal to anyone who wants to know what really happens when two people decide to get married.
