Sexing The Brain:

Sexing the Brain Lesley J. Rogers, 2001 How much of sexual diversity is the result of nature versus nurture Prevailing theories today lean heavily toward nature Now a leading researcher in neuroscience and animal behavior shows how in recent history scientific claims about sex and gender differences have reflected the culture of the time Although the conviction that genetics can explain everything is now widespread the author demonstrates the interaction of culture and environment in the formation of behavioral traits and so provides an important corrective to popular notions of reductionism Starting with a summary of sex and gender studies Rogers explains the error of sex biasing especially the once assumed inferiority of women She then addresses several modern studies and investigations some of which assert that sex and gender differences are the product of genetic inheritance and hormones Rogers uses laboratory evidence from studies of animals that help illustrate the biologically fluid properties of sex and gender Sexing the Brain addresses a variety of topical questions Are there sex differences in how we think and feel Is language processed in different parts of the brain in men and women Do social influences have a stronger influence on sexual behavior than sex hormone levels Rogers concludes that our biology does not bind us to remain the same We have the ability to change and the future of sex differences belongs to us

Hill, Ph.D, 2025-09-30 Do you feel like you're riding a premenstrual roller coaster every month that leaves you feeling hungry tired angry sad and unsexy Leading researcher and women's hormone expert Dr Sarah E Hill explains why we feel so universally icky before our periods and what to do about it The problem isn't that women are hormonal the problem is that the second half of the menstrual cycle the luteal phase when the hormone progesterone rises and estrogen decreases has been systematically ignored by science and medicine Progesterone is at the heart of every feeling we associate with PMS it affects our daily sleep and calorie needs hello cravings whom we're attracted to our sex drive and as every woman can attest our mood Because the luteal phase is understudied every bit of health diet and relationship advice you've followed is based on that first estrogen glow half of the month or worse was designed for men The rules that work for us in the first two weeks of the cycle don't always fit in the second causing most of us to spend half the month following advice that is completely at odds with the way our bodies work at this time It's no wonder we feel awful Dr Hill demystifies how our bodies work so you can work with your hormones to Sidestep PMS cravings by eating more you burn up to 11% extra calories in the luteal phase Exercise in a way that's invigorating instead of draining Understand your sex drive and why sex has different meaning across the month Quit bad habits more easily thanks to progesterone's addiction busting properties Navigate motivational and energy dips without added stress Incorporate anti-inflammatory foods and habits to naturally ease PMS The Period Brain is a science tested roadmap to understanding PMS and PMDD It's time we demand a better month every month and usher in a new era in women's health Period
