

Sexual Harassment in Schools

The internet, social media and mobile phones are widely used to communicate with our friends and people across the world.

Being able to communicate so freely and openly is a magnificent tool to have. However, like with most things, it is open to abuse by a small minority of people. A recent study by Estyn found that harassment amongst students was most common outside of school and online. Being asked for nude photos was one of the most prevalent types of harassment reported. This abuse can have a serious and negative effect on a person's wellbeing and general health.

Did you know, taking, making, sharing and possessing indecent images or pseudo-photographs of people under 18 is illegal.

!! Almost half of all students reported that they kept their experiences of sexual harassment to themselves. !!

!! 87% of female students reported having personal experience of sexual harassment. !!

Indecent images include the following:

- Naked pictures
- Pictures of genitals
- Sex acts
- Sexual pictures in underwear.

!! 95% of Year 13 students reported seeing sexual harassment take place. !!

Identify the main risks of sending sexualised images.

Sending or receiving sexual images can lead to high levels of distress for the victim. This could lead to negative effects on a person's health, confidence and wellbeing.

Discuss with a partner and identify the effects that sharing sexual images may have on the victim.
