Intersection of Adolescent Sexual, Reproductive, and Mental Health in

Sub-Saharan Africa Negussie Boti Sidamo, Zacharie Tsala Dimbuene, Sultan Hussen Hebo, Stephen Chukwudeh, 2025-06-18

Adolescence is a crucial stage of development in which young people experience a wide range of emotional social and physical changes One significant aspect of this period is the exploration and emergence of reproductive health and behaviours Alongside this mental health and well being are increasingly recognized as vital components of overall adolescent health and development The intersection of adolescent sexual reproductive and mental health is complex dynamic and multifaceted with numerous social cultural and biological factors influencing these domains Addressing this intersection remains a critical area of research policy and practice to promote healthy adolescent development and empower young people with the knowledge and skills necessary to make informed decisions about their sexual reproductive and mental health In sub Saharan Africa adolescents have greater risk factors and low access to health services that make them prone to such problems This underscores the need to consider an integrated approach to address the sexual reproductive and mental health problems of adolescents living in sub Saharan Africa These insights are pivotal for identifying novel approaches that are highly effective and well tolerated for integrated services to improve the relief of adolescents living in sub Saharan Africa from sexual reproductive and mental health problems

Old Wineskins, New Wine Chimaraoke O. Izugbara, 2010 A draft working definition of sexuality developed by the World Health Organization WHO lent some clarity to the fuzzy concept The WHO draft definition conceptualises sexuality as a central aspect of being human throughout life which encompasses sex gender identities and roles sexual orientation eroticism pleasure intimacy and reproduction Questions about human sexuality have also begun to be asked in very imaginative ways forcing the field of sexuality to spill over the margins of academic legitimacy and to increasingly hold its own as a valid field of intellectual inquiry However in many ways in sub Saharan Africa sexuality as an academic field has been obligated to piggy back on public health in order to receive serious attention The consideration of sexuality in the region without some connection with disease has often been perceived as a rather frivolous academic endeavour Modifying this notion has been a slow but sure venture Sexual Behavior of Adolescents in Contemporary Sub-Saharan Africa Yanyi Kasongo Djamba, 2004 The papers in this volume show that Africa is a mosaic of cultures where local norms and values must be considered in order to successfully understand and manage the emerging sexual and reproductive health issues Young People's Lives and Sexual Relationships in Rural Africa Mary Louisa Plummer, Daniel Wight, 2011-08-16 New infections with HIV remain an urgent problem among young people in Africa but many young Africans pursue sexual relationships with little thought about the epidemic This book examines young people's sexual relationships in a region typical of rural sub Saharan Africa and investigates why the risk of HIV infection generally was not a salient concern for them It is based on an extraordinarily large and representative qualitative study that was affiliated with an adolescent sexual health intervention trial and included three person years of participant observation conducted by young East Africans in nine Tanzanian villages The book describes typical patterns of sexual relationship formation in adolescence and early adult life the variety of young people's relationships and practices and the contradictory social ideals and expectations that led premarital and extramarital relationships to be concealed Young men's main motivations for sex were pleasure and masculine identity while young women's was to receive money or materials to meet their basic needs such as soap or a daytime meal By their late teens most young people had experienced one time sexual encounters open ended opportunistic relationships and main sometimes semi public partnerships Relationships could involve desire possessiveness and affection but romantic idealization of a partner was rare Many young people expected their partners to be monogamous but themselves had had concurrent relationships by age 20 The practice of hiding premarital sexual relationships from adults often also concealed them from other sexual partners which helped maintain concurrency and inhibited realistic risk perception Understanding of the biology of HIV AIDS was very limited Condoms were rarely used because they were associated with reduced pleasure infection and promiscuity Sexually transmitted infections were common but several factors hindered young people from seeking biomedical treatment for them Many instead relied on tradition Strengthening the protection of sexual and reproductive health and rights in the African region through human rights Eunice Brookman-Amissah, Tinyade Kachika, Simangele Mavundla, Jaime Todd-Gher, Christina Zampas, Onyema Afulukwe-Eruchalu, Karen Stefiszyn, Rebecca Amollo, Lisa Forman, Godfrey Kangaude, Tiffany Banda, Ayodele Atsenuwa, Susana Sácouto, Fana Hagos Berhane, 2015-11-03 Strengthening the protection of sexual and reproductive health and rights in the African region through human rights uses rights based frameworks to address some of the serious sexual and reproductive health challenges that the African region is currently facing More importantly the book provides insightful human rights approaches on how these challenges can be overcome The book is the first of its kind It is an important addition to the resources available to researchers academics policymakers civil society organisations human rights defenders learners and other persons interested in the subject of sexual and reproductive health and rights as they apply to the African region Human rights issues addressed by the book include access to safe abortion and emergency obstetric care HIV AIDS adolescent sexual health and rights early marriage and gender based sexual violence
