interest in photography's beginnings by reframing it in critical and specifically historiographical terms How and why do we write about the origins of the medium Whom or what do we rely on to construct those narratives What's at stake in choosing to tell stories of photography's genesis in one way or another And what kind of work can those stories do Edited by Tanya Sheehan and Andr s Mario Zervig n this collection of 16 original essays illustrated with 32 colour images showcases prominent and emerging voices in the field of photography studies Their research cuts across disciplines and methodologies shedding new light on old questions about histories and their writing Photography and Its Origins will serve as a valuable resource for students and scholars in art history visual and media studies and the history of science and technology

Photography in Africa Richard Vokes, 2012 Gives an ethnographic account of the complexities of the use of photography in Africa both historically and in contemporary practice This collection of studies in African photography examines through a series of empirically rich historical and ethnographic cases the variety of ways in which photographs are produced circulated and engaged across a range of social contexts In so doing it elucidates the distinctive characteristics of African photographic practices and cultures vis  vis those of other forms of vernacular photography worldwide In addition these studies develop a reflexive turn examining the history of academic engagement with these African photographic cultures and reflecting on the distinctive qualities of the ethnographic method as a means for studying such phenomena The volume critically engages current debates in African photography and visual anthropology First it extends our understanding of the variety of ways in which both colonial and post colonial states in Africa have used photography as a means for establishing and projecting their authority Second it moves discussion of African photography away from an exclusive focus on the role of the studio and looks at the circulations through which the studio's products the photographs themselves later pass as artefacts of material culture Last it makes an important contribution to our understanding of the relationship between photography and ethnographic research methods as these have been employed in Africa RICHARD VOKES is Senior Lecturer in Anthropology and Development Studies at the University of Adelaide Australia and author of Ghosts of Kanungu

Negative/Positive Geoffrey Batchen,2020-12-21 As its title suggests Negative Positive begins with the negative a foundational element of analog photography that is nonetheless usually ignored and uses this to tell a representative rather than comprehensive history of the medium The fact that a photograph is split between negative and positive manifestations means that its identity is always simultaneously divided and multiplied The interaction of these two components was often spread out over time and space and could involve more than one person giving photography the capacity to produce multiple copies of a given image and for that image to have many different looks sizes and makers This book traces these complications for canonical images by such figures as William Henry Fox Talbot Kusakabe Kimbei Dorothea Lange Man Ray Seydou Ke ta Richard Avedon and Andreas Gursky But it also considers a number of related issues crucial to any understanding of photography from the business practices of professional photographers to the repetition of pose and setting that is so central to certain familiar photographic genres Ranging from the daguerreotype to the digital image the end result is a kind of little history of photography partial and episodic but no less significant a rendition of the photographic experience for being so This book represents a summation of Batchen s work to date making it be essential reading for students and scholars of photography and for all those interested in the history of the medium
