between change in population distribution and its determinants and consequences on one hand and social and economic development on the other is becoming an increasingly important area of concern for researchers policy makers and planners alike During tha last several years the International Geographical Union Commission on Population Geography has devoted much of its attention to this problem and organized a series of international meetings focusing on population redistribution and its ramifications in different parts of the world During one such meeting held in 1980 in Karachi Pakistan some thirty papers were submitted by participants coming mostly from five countries in South Asia Bangladesh India Nepal Pakistan and Sri Lanka The present volume is an outcome of that symposium but it should not be regarded merely as a report of proceedings these have been published separately by the Commission Furthermore all Pakistani papers were published intheir original version in a separate volume edited by M 1 Siddigi who coordinated local arrangements for the meeting on behalf of Karachi University This present volume offers only a selection of the original papers all substantially edited and thoroughly revised and brings them together with additionally solicited texts All original figures have been redrawn and tables and references have been updated and standardized as much as possible Capitalizing on the Demographic Transition, 2011-06-02 Increasing life expectancy in South Asia is resulting in a demographic transition that can under the right circumstances yield dividends through more favorable dependency ratios for a time With aging the disease burden shifts toward noncommunicable diseases NCDs which can threaten healthy aging However securing the gains expected from the demographic dividend where developing countries working and nondependent population increases and per capita income thus rises is both achievable and affordable through efficiently tacking NCDs with prevention and control efforts This book looks primarily at cardiovascular disease CVD and tobacco use since they account for a disproportionate amount of the NCD burden the focus is strategic rather than comprehensive The goal of this book is to encourage countries to develop adopt and implement effective and timely country and where appropriate regional responses that reduce both population level risk factors and the NCD burden The work develops i an NCD burden and risk factor profile for all countries and the region as a whole ii a rationale for public policy and action for NCDs iii a framework to guide the formulation of public policies and strategies for NCDs iv a country profile including capacity and ongoing NCD activities as well as policy options and actions for NCDs that will help stimulate policy dialogue within and among countries and v a regional strategy for NCD prevention and control where regional collaboration offers added value The achievements of this book are i developing a framework for policy options to identify key areas for strategic country and regional level policy and actions ii bringing together demographic and aging trends disease and risk factor burden data alongside analyses of capacities and accomplishments to tackle NCDs and iii using these inputs to develop policy options for country and regional strategies
