The Portrait of a Lady - Volume 1 Henry James, 2018-06-30 The Portrait of a Lady Volume 1 by Henry James PREFACE The Portrait of a Lady was like Roderick Hudson begun in Florence during three months spent there in the spring of 1879 Like Roderick and like The American it had been designed for publication in The Atlantic Monthly where it began to appear in 1880 It differed from its two predecessors however in finding a course also open to it from month to month in Macmillan's Magazine which was to be for me one of the last occasions of simultaneous serialisation in the two countries that the changing conditions of literary intercourse between England and the United States had up to then left unaltered It is a long novel and I was long in writing it I remember being again much occupied with it the following year during a stay of several weeks made in Venice I had rooms on Riva Schiavoni at the top of a house near the passage leading off to San Zaccaria the waterside life the wondrous lagoon spread before me and the ceaseless human chatter of Venice came in at my windows to which I seem to myself to have been constantly driven in the fruitless fidget of composition as if to see whether out in the blue channel the ship of some right suggestion of some better phrase of the next happy twist of my subject the next true touch for my canvas mightn't come into sight But I recall vividly enough that the response most elicited in general to these restless appeals was the rather grim admonition that romantic and historic sites such as the land of Italy abounds in offer the artist a questionable aid to concentration when they themselves are not to be the subject of it They are too rich in their own life and too charged with their own meanings merely to help him out with a lame phrase they draw him away from his small question to their own greater ones so that after a little he feels while thus yearning toward them in his difficulty as if he were asking an army of glorious veterans to help him to arrest a peddler who has given him the wrong change We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience

The Portrait of a Lady Henry James, 2021-01-20 Henry James The Portrait of a Lady is the story of Isabel Archer, a spirited young woman affronting her destiny. In the first volume, Isabel was invited by her relatives to London after her father's demise. Soon after that, Isabel's uncle dies and leaves her with an inheritance. Continuing where the first volume left off, the rejected Lord Warburton tells Isabel that he will be leaving Rome as he isn't able to conceal his interest in her. A man named Gilbert Osmond takes advantage of this to get closer to Isabel. They ended up being together, but Osmond turns out to be controlling and takes from Isabel the most important thing in her life: independence. Will the free-spirited Isabel forever lose her freedom? Add to cart now and find out.

These selected paragraphs distill the contents and give you a quick look inside. We know that he was fond of originals, of rarities of the superior and the exquisite, and now that he had seen Lord Warburton, whom he thought a very fine example of his race and order, he perceived a new attraction in the idea of taking to himself a young lady who had qualified herself to figure in his collection of choice.

objects by declining so noble a hand Isabel was not struck with the oddity of his saying this gravely she was thinking that the pleasantest incident of her life so it pleased her to qualify these too few days in Rome which she might musingly have likened to the figure of some small princess of one of the ages of dress overmuffled in a mantle of state and dragging a train that it took pages or historians to hold up that this felicity was coming to an end This lady was still at Casa Touchett but she too was on the point of leaving Florence her next station being an ancient castle in the mountains of Tuscany the residence of a noble family of that country whose acquaintance she had known them as she said forever seemed to Isabel in the light of certain photographs of their immense crenellated dwelling which her friend was able to show her a precious privilege At one moment she thought it would be so natural for that young woman to come home and take a house in New York the Rossiters for instance which had an elegant conservatory and was just round the corner from her own at another she couldn't conceal her surprise at the girl's not marrying some member of one of the great aristocracies It was a taste of Osmond's own not at all of hers this she had told him the first time he came to the house when after asking himself for a quarter of an hour whether they had even better French than he in Paris he was obliged on the spot to admit that they had very much and vanquished his envy as a gentleman should to the point of expressing to his hostess his pure admiration of her treasures invited by her maternal aunt Lydia Touchett to visit Lydia's rich husband Daniel at his estate near London following the death of Isabel's father. There Isabel meets her uncle, her friendly invalid cousin Ralph Touchett, and the Touchetts' robust neighbor Lord Warburton. Isabel later declines Warburton's sudden proposal of marriage. She also rejects the hand of Caspar Goodwood, the charismatic son and heir of a wealthy Boston mill owner. Although Isabel is drawn to Caspar, her commitment to her independence precludes such a marriage, which she feels would demand the sacrifice of her freedom. The elder Touchett grows ill, and at the request of his son, leaves much of his estate to Isabel upon his death. With her large legacy, Isabel travels the Continent and meets an American expatriate, Gilbert Osmond, in Florence. Although Isabel had previously rejected both Warburton and Goodwood, she accepts Osmond's proposal of marriage, unaware that it has been actively promoted by the accomplished but untrustworthy Madame Merle, another American expatriate whom Isabel had met at the Touchetts' estate. Isabel and Osmond settle in Rome, but their marriage rapidly sours due to Osmond's overwhelming egotism and lack of genuine affection for his wife. Isabel grows fond of Pansy Osmond, Osmond's presumed daughter by his first marriage, and wants to grant her wish to marry Edward Rosier, a young art collector. The snobbish Osmond would prefer that Pansy accept the proposal of Warburton, who had previously proposed to Isabel. Isabel suspects, however, that Warburton may just be feigning interest in Pansy to get close to Isabel again, and the conflict creates even more strain within the unhappy marriage. Isabel then learns that Ralph is dying at his estate in England and prepares to go to him for his final hours, but Osmond selfishly opposes this plan. Meanwhile, Isabel learns from her sister-in-law that Pansy is actually the daughter of Madame Merle, who had had an adulterous relationship with Osmond for several years. Isabel pays a final visit to Pansy, who desperately begs her to return someday, which Isabel reluctantly promises to do. She then leaves without telling her spiteful husband to comfort the dying Ralph in England, where she remains until his death. Goodwood encounters her at Ralph's estate and begs her to leave Osmond and come away with him. He passionately embraces and kisses her, but Isabel flees. Goodwood seeks her out the next day but is told she has set off again for Rome. The ending is ambiguous, and the reader is left to imagine whether Isabel returned to Osmond to suffer out her marriage in noble tragedy, perhaps for Pansy's sake, or if she is going to rescue Pansy and leave Osmond.
