Vallinoto, Luiz Fernando Almeida Machado, Graham Philip Taylor, Carolina Rosadas, 2022-09-22 Achilles Heel of CAR T-Cell Therapy Maurizio Chiriva-Internati, Fabio Grizzi, 2025-11-25

Chimeric Antigen Receptor CAR T cell therapy represents a groundbreaking advancement in cancer treatment particularly for hematological malignancies. Despite its potential to offer curative outcomes, the field faces significant challenges that hinder its widespread application. Current issues include the high costs and complexities associated with manufacturing CAR T cells especially in both autologous and allogeneic settings. The process involves intricate viral manufacturing and stability testing which pose risks of systemic immunological and neurological reactions if cells are not properly cultured and screened. Recent studies have highlighted the need for improved targeting to minimize off-tumor effects and reduce cell-associated toxicities. Moreover, the phenomenon of antigen escape remains a formidable barrier with over 80% of relapsed or refractory cases occurring in hematological cancers treated with CD19 and BCMA CAR T cell therapies. While promising models for cost reduction and automation are emerging, there is a pressing need for innovative strategies to enhance the efficacy and safety of CAR T cell therapies. This Research Topic aims to address the critical challenges in developing a sustainable and cost-effective CAR T cell therapy. The primary objectives include identifying promising models to reduce manufacturing costs, automating processes to minimize human error, and improving the therapeutic efficacy of CAR T cells. Specific questions to be explored include how to decrease CAR immunogenicity, enhance tumor microenvironment infiltration, and prevent antigen escape. By focusing on these areas, the research seeks to advance the field towards more effective and safer cancer therapies. To gather further insights in the realm of CAR T cell therapy, we welcome articles addressing but not limited to the following themes: Innovations in viral delivery and cell engineering techniques; Strategies for reducing manufacturing costs and improving scalability; Approaches to minimize systemic immunological and neurological reactions; Development of humanized CARs to decrease immunogenicity; Methods to enhance CAR T cell trafficking and infiltration in tumor microenvironments; Solutions to prevent antigen escape and improve long-term efficacy; Comparative analyses of autologous versus allogeneic CAR T cell therapies. Growth, Destruction and the Challenges of Reconstruction Nasser Amin Hassan Saidi, 1999

Meeting the Challenges of Macroeconomic Convergence Criteria in the Second West Africa Monetary Zone (WAMZ) S. O. Akande, 2007 RNA Delivery Function for Anticancer Therapeutics Loutfy H. Madkour, 2022-01-25

This book presents an overview of the current status of translating the RNAi cancer therapeutics in the clinic, a brief description of the biological barriers in drug delivery, and the roles of imaging in aspects of administration route, systemic circulation, and cellular barriers for the clinical translation of RNAi cancer therapeutics, and with partial content for discussing the safety concerns. It then focuses on imaging-guided delivery of RNAi therapeutics in preclinical development, including the basic principles of different imaging modalities and their advantages and limitations for biological imaging. With growing number of RNAi therapeutics entering the clinic various imaging methods will play an important role in facilitating the translation of RNAi cancer therapeutics from bench to bedside RNAi technique has become a powerful tool for basic research to selectively knock down gene expression in vitro and in vivo Our scientific and industrial communities have started to develop RNAi therapeutics as the next class of drugs for treating a variety of genetic disorders such as cancer and other diseases that are particularly hard to address with current treatment strategies Key Features Provides insight into the current advances and hurdles of RNAi therapeutics Accelerates RNAi miRNAs and siRNA drug development for cancer therapy from bench to bedside Addresses various modifications and novel delivery strategies for miRNAs piRNAs and siRNA delivery in anticancer therapeutics Explores the need for the interaction of hematologists cell biologists immunologists and material scientists in the development of novel cancer therapies Describes the current status of clinical trials related to miRNA and siRNA based cancer therapy Presents remaining issues that need to be overcome to establish successful therapies

Environmental Challenges Confronting the Oil Industry Javier Estrada, Kristian Tangen, Helge Ole Bergesen, 1997 Since the late 1980s when the current tide of environmental concern began to rise every improvement made by the oil industry has been followed by new demands for further progress New problems have been placed on top of the old ones first smog in the inner cities and oil spills on the beaches then acid rain and forest die back followed by major tank disasters and renewed attention to urban air quality and finally climatic change The purpose of this book is to investigate whether the oil industry is able to extend and renew its social legitimacy as it faces its toughest agenda in a century the challenges stemming from its impact on the environment and the consequent public questioning of its role in society To find out whether and how the oil industry has responded to environmental issues in general and climatic change in particular five indicators of change vision image R D investments and government relations have been selected These have been assumed to be expressions of an environmental strategy which can be identified as reactive cautious or creative The empirical analysis begins with case studies of the environmental response of five major oil companies Shell Exxon BP Amoco and Statoil The next step is a case study of the refinery sector which is the most environmentally sensitive part of the industry in many ways In addition a brief description of how three industry associations have tackled the same environmental issues is included The main readership for this book will be policy makers planners and researchers in the oil industry and environmental consultants
