and Serials in Print, 1982 What Am I Doing Here? Hilary Brand, 2008 Have you ever wondered what church is all about? Ever found yourself in a service wondering what on earth is going on? And what the point of it all is? Whether you're completely new to church or have been coming to church for a while, this little book is here to help you. With a down-to-earth style and subtle humour, What Am I Doing Here? takes you through an Anglican Holy Communion service, demystifying what happens and why. Subjects covered include: What are you doing here? The need to meet your maker. Worship. The need to celebrate and count our blessings. Confession. The need for accounting procedures and a clean slate. Sermons. The need for wise words and challenging questions. The Creed. The need for a basic belief system. Prayer. The need to engage with the wider world and ask for help. The Peace. The need to live in right relationship with others. Holy Communion. The need for strength, comfort, and delight. Being sent out and the after-church chat. The need to share the journey. Contextual Frames of Reference in Translation Ernst Wendland, 2014-04-08 Bible translation theory and practice rightly tend to focus on the actual text of Scripture. But many diverse yet interrelated contextual factors also play an important part in the implementation of a successful translation program. The aim of this coursebook is to explore in varying degrees of detail a wide range of these crucial situational variables and potential influences using a multidisciplinary approach to the task. Thus, in order to expand and enrich the field of vision, a progressive study of this complex process of intercultural/interlinguistic communication is carried out according to a set of overlapping sociocultural, organizational, and situational cognitive orientations. These contextual factors provide a broader frame of reference for analyzing, interpreting, and communicating the original Scriptures in a completely new contemporary setting of transmission and reception. The three dimensions are then applied in a practical way to explore the dramatic throne-room vision of the Apostle John, Revelation 4-5, with reference to both the original Greek text and also a modern dynamic translation in Chewa, a southeastern Bantu language of Africa. A variety of exercises and assignments to stimulate critical and creative reflection, as well as to illustrate the theoretical development of Contextual Frames of Reference, is provided every step of the way. Not only is translation per se discussed, but the teaching and evaluation of translated texts and versions are also considered from several points of view. In the final three chapters, an Appendix offers a foundational essay by Professor Lourens de Vries on the subject of primary orality and the influence of this vital factor in the crosscultural communication of the Bible. New International Dictionary, 1920 The New Oxford Annotated Bible with the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books Michael David Coogan, Marc Zvi
