Personal Recollections of a Cavalryman with Custer's Michigan Cavalry Brigade in the Civil War \(Expanded, Annotated\) James Harvey Kidd, 2016-11-05 This edition is expanded and annotated. Envision 10,000 mounted men of one of the best cavalries the world has ever produced strung out along 13 miles marching around Robert E. Lee's right flank, taunting J. E. B. Stuart to come out and fight. In one of the most thrilling and detailed accounts of one of the most important battles of the American Civil War that most people know nothing of, James Kidd tells this story and much more of the Michigan Wolverine Cavalry under the command of George Armstrong Custer. The popular image of General Custer, James Kidd wrote in 1908, is incorrect. He was not reckless or wasteful of men. The battle was Yellow Tavern part of the Spottsylvania fight and Phil Sheridan later said he believed it was the greatest cavalry engagement of the Civil War J E B Stuart was fatally wounded in the fight At Gettysburg Brandy Station the Trevillian Raid Kilpatrick s Richmond raid and the Shennandoah Valley the Wolverines played a crucial role in the Union victory Kidd also provides wonderful details about the movement of large cavalry units especially when they must be turned in battle In one of the best written memoirs of the Civil War Kidd has presented a picture of the Michigan Cavalry and its unforgettable leader that helps complete the image of Custer as a soldier

A Cavalryman with Custer's Michigan Cavalry Brigade James Harvey Kidd, 2010-04 The narrative contained in the pages of this book is a story of the personal recollections of one of the troopers who rode with Custer and played a part in the tragedy of the civil war As such it is modestly put forth with the hope that it may prove to be an interesting story to those who read it The author also trusts that it may contribute something albeit but a little toward giving Custer's Michigan cavalymen the place in the history of their country which they so richly earned on many fields While memory has been the principal guide the strict historical truth has been sought and when there appeared to be a reasonable doubt the official records have been consulted and the writings of others freely drawn upon to verify these recollections The Roll of Honor a list of all those who were killed in action or who died of wounds received in action is as complete as it was possible to make it from the official records In a very few cases men who were reported missing in action and of whom no further record could be found were assumed to have belonged in the list but these are not numerous enough to materially affect the totals For the rest the author cannot claim that he has done justice to either of these organizations but he has made an honest effort to be fair and impartial to tell the truth as he saw it without prejudice How well he has succeeded is not for him to say It is an interesting story said an officer who served with distinction in the Fifth Michigan cavalry If that shall be the verdict of all the comrades who read it the writer will be satisfied A completely new reprint of the original 1908 edition this Our Civil War Press book has been edited and printed in a clear crisp typeface for easy reading
