Development Everett M. Rogers, 1976 Perspectives on Development Communication K Sadanandan Nair, Shirley A White, 1994-03-02 Nair and White have devised a model best suited for developing countries like India where a unidirectional flow of information has hitherto considerably hindered the development process The papers included in this volume will be useful to students and research scholars particularly in the field of communication The strength of the volume lies in the variety of viewpoints presented from the economic development perspective The Indian Journal of Social Science Current thinking in development communication has shifted from the dominant paradigm of the diffusion of innovation to a less top down approach acknowledging the importance of a micro level focus with coherent linkages to the macro level It is now widely accepted that the development process requires full participation of the people if there is to be a commitment to development decisions development communication can play a decisive role in facilitating this wider involvement The 18 original essays presented in this volume offer diverse viewpoints regarding the need to rethink the effectiveness of existing development models and processes The new model of communication posited by the editors of this book addresses the transition from traditional governance by ascendancy to a more grassroots orientation in development decision making The underlying concern is to reconceptualize development communication Perspectives on Development Communication provides a thoughtful and provocative exposition of both the established and forthcoming approaches Global Perspectives on

Information Society Karamjit S. Gill, 2012-12-06 Human centredness A Challenge to Post industrial Europe The key power in industrial society has been linked to the possession of capital and factory In the information society it could be rather different If one accepts that that the key power in the information society will be linked not so much to the ownership of information but to human creativity nourished by that information the productive force of today and tomorrow could be more and more the human brain Making use of one's intelligence is always accompanied by positive emotion which in turn further activates the intelligence But unfortunately under present conditions workers of all levels live in fear anxiety and stress rather than desire and motivation The question of basic human ecology quality of life is therefore a major strategic factor It is precisely the opposite to the mechanisms of exclusion that currently dominate our society exclusion of young people through joblessness but also exclusion through technology as with the helplessness of older people or the poorly educated confronted with ticket dispensing machines or other automats This is not idle theorizing it corresponds to concrete facts It is for example how some observers interpret the crisis at IBM Because its programs were less human friendly it was shaken to its foundations by Apple and Microsoft though it seems since to have learnt its lesson
