Personal Voices Chinese Women In The 1980s:

Personal Voices Emily Honig, Gail Hershatter, 1988 Dramatic and far reaching changes have occurred in the lives of Chinese women in the years since the death of Mao and the fall of the Gang of Four During the decade of the Cultural Revolution attention to personal life was regarded as bourgeois in the post Mao decade abrupt turns in public policy made discussion of personal life imperative and nowhere has this been more evident than in the debate about the role of women in Chinese society This book is based on extensive personal viewing of urban women and study of contemporary literature and articles in the periodical press that touched on the problems of rural women It is not only about the changes in women's lives but also about the excitement confusion and anxieties that Chinese women express as they contemplate the future of their society and their own place in it Each chapter is devoted to one aspect of women's Lives girlhood adornment and sexuality courtship marriage family relations divorce work violence against women and gender inequality Giving a personal dimension to the issues discussed the chapters close with a rich sampling of excerpts from the newly thriving women's press and other contemporary publications Although many women in China still suffer discrimination in working life and mistreatment in the family they can now raise questions that would have been unthinkable even ten years ago Most notably they can and do use the press to voice complaints expose injustices seek advice and support or deplore the social changes of the 1980s

Women and Politics in the Third World Haleh Afshar, 2005-07-26 Women and Politics in the Third World is the first comprehensive textbook on women's political activities in the third world It provides a feminist analytical perspective on the specific forms of resistance organisation and negotiation by women in third world states Using case studies the book focuses on difference as a theoretical basis for investigating feminine political activism Though Western analysts have attributed weakness to terms such as motherhood marriage and domesticity as choices made by non Western women the contributors show that such strategies are used by women to pursue particular goals such as seeking resources welfare or freedom from oppression for their children These strategies the book suggests should not be classified as unimportant or temporary and can be highly effective even within such discourses as Islamic fundamentalism The contributors highlight differing political approaches in regions as diverse as Latin America South East Asia China and the Middle East Chinese
