Personcentred Counselling Supervision:

Person-Centred Counselling Supervision Richard Bryant-Jefferies, 2005 Practitioner Bryant Jefferies explains a process of supervision within counseling in which the supervisor demonstrates a person centered way of working and the counselors being supervised bring their experiences of working in the same way The Handbook of Person-Centred Psychotherapy and Counselling Mick Cooper, Maureen O'Hara, Peter F. Schmid, 2013-05-31 Thoroughly updated to reflect the latest trends in theory and practice this substantially revised and extended edition is the most in depth and wide ranging textbook available on person centred psychotherapy and counselling Divided into four parts it examines the theoretical philosophical and historical foundations of the person centred approach the fundamental principles of person centred practice and applications of person centred practice how person centred conceptualisations and practices can be applied to groups of clients who bring particular issues to therapy and finally professional issues for person centred therapists such as ethics supervision and training Written by a diverse range of expert contributors unified by a more relational ethics based reading of person centred theory and practice this is a comprehensive cutting edge resource for students on all advanced level person centred courses as well as for a wide range of professional practitioners in the field New to this Edition A new introductory chapter looking at contemporary challenges and opportunities for growth for the person centred world Nine further new chapters including work with children and young people older clients arts based therapies addiction and bereavement spiritual dimensions contact and perception working integratively global and political implications Increased use of text learning features to make the chapters more accessible and engaging A greater focus on actual practice with more case studies and examples of therapist client dialogues Increased reference to research A general updating of all chapters to include all relevant references Training and Supervision for Counselling in Action Windy Dryden, Brian Thorne, 1991-03-26 An excellent compilation Given the explosion in the demand for both counselling and supervision this book should be required reading for all those putting a toe in these complex waters However I think it is also a salutary guide for those already practising as trainers and supervisors I found the issues raised stimulated me to think again about my own practice and to profit from that exercise Counselling The Journal of The British Association for Counselling Psychotherapy This accessible book explores the issues involved in both the training and supervision of counsellors and in the preparation of those who are to undertake supervisory and training roles The number of training courses is growing and counsellors must undergo supervision if they are to be accredited by professional bodies In this volume leading trainers and supervisors from different counselling traditions discuss the responsibilities and the professional and practical issues involved and a trainee and supervisee give an insider's view of what it feels like to be in these positions The closing chapter deals with the important issue of training for counsellor trainers and supervisors Learning and Being in Person-centred Counselling Tony Merry, 2002 In the second edition of this hugely popular book Tony Merry reorganised and updated the text to include the latest initiatives in the world of counselling and psychotherapy It offers in depth discussion of all aspects of person centred counselling from its origins to current developments in theory and practice Supervising Counsellors David King,Sue Wheeler,2001-05-02 Supervising Counsellors is a practical and insightful guide to the responsibilities facing all those involved in supervising practitioners and trainees Drawing together contributions and new research from those at the forefront of supervisory practice this book makes essential reading for both qualified and trainee supervisors Part One defines the supervisor s clinical legal and ethical responsibilities and clearly sets out the law and professional codes relating to supervision Part Two examines issues that arise for supervisors working in different contexts organizations training primary care and some of the wider issues concerning supervision and highlights in particular the expectations of supervisees and the role of supervisors in ensuring that clients are not discriminated against Person-Centred Counselling in Action Dave Mearns,Brian Thorne,1988-10 This practical and comprehensive guide is written for counsellor trainers and their trainees as well as for counsellors already in practice wanting to familiarize themselves with the person centred approach to counselling Dave Mearns and Brian Thorne explain the theoretical principles of the person centred approach by relating these principles to actual practice Drawing on one particular case study the two counsellors present an extensive exploration of the core conditions of empathy acceptance and congruence and provide a step by step account of both the counsellor s and the client s experience of being involved in a trusting caring relationship characterised by power sharing and mutuality Supervision Moira Walker,Michael Jacobs,2004-10-08 Supervision is a prerequisite for all counsellors and for most psychotherapists yet until recently it has been assumed that any experienced counsellor or therapist could become a supervisor without any special expertise But the experience of those in supervision is sometimes of inadequate or even unhelpful work by their supervisors At the same time supervision is receiving considerable attention as a discipline in its own right with an expanding literature on the dynamics of the supervisory couple or the supervisory triad since the client is a central if absent presence more attention is also being paid to the technical skills required of the supervisor This book attempts to address these issues both from the perspective of the supervisee and the supervisor suggesting what supervisees might expect from good supervision as well as offering guidance to supervisors on how best to use to the full the opportunities offered by a therapeutic situation which has some similarities but also some radical differences from counselling and therapy itself Group Supervision Brigid Proctor,2000-06-22 This book is a most welcome addition to the rapidly growing number of books now available that address aspects of counselling supervision in the British context To my knowledge it is the first that deals exclusively with group supervision and it is likely to become a classic text It provides a comprehensive and in many ways inspiring handbook that should prove of enormous help to any individual or organization contemplating setting up group supervision for counsellors and other clinical practitioner British Journal of Guidance Counselling This much awaited book makes a welcome entry into the rather sparse British literature on group supervision

Counselling at Work This is a welcome addition to the literature on counselling supervision I found it especially stimulating having used various models of group supervision as a senior probation officer and now using it in a listening post In both examples the method did not replace individual supervision but greatly enhanced it I thank Brigid Proctor for her guidelines for good practice and stimulating ideas for using the potential of groupwork within the supervision process and recognize it as a really valuable Sage like contribution ACCORD This is a welcome addition to the literature on counselling supervision I found it especially stimulating having used various models of group supervision as a Senior Probation Officer and now using it in listening post In both examples the method did not replace individual supervision but greatly enhanced it I thank Brigid Proctor for her guidelines for good practice and stimulating ideas for using the potential of groupwork within the supervision process and recognize it as a really valuable Sage like contribution ACCORD This practical guide illuminates the tasks roles and responsibilities of group supervisors and supervisees Case studies of four groups are developed throughout to illustrate the differences and issues that arise in the process of group supervision The first part describes the Group Supervision Alliance Model on which the book is based and identifies four overlapping but distinct types of group authoritative participative co operative and peer The second part focuses on the skills of managing each type of group and offers guidelines for making clear agreements and alliances developing flexible leadership and making sense of group and individual developmental needs The author also tackles hot issues that arise in group supervision and suggests positive ways of encouraging and working with the diversity which groups encompass their practice or who are training to become person centred counsellors Counselling and Psychotherapy Journal The Journal of the British Association for Counselling and Psychotherapy Offer expires 30th September 2002 I found myself fascinated riveted by the accessibility of the prose and format and most importantly splendidly re engaged with the person centred approach The book will prove most useful to practitioners and students of the person centred approach to counselling but those from other orientations might also be agreeably surprised by its depth and by Mearns dare I say analytical approach to his subject I found his style of writing intelligent and clearly set out and whilst thoroughly academic it included lots of good clinical evidence and cameos there is nothing vague or highly idealised but rather a set of clear thinking rigorous chapters that make it a most worthwhile addition to the current counselling literature Self Society Crucial areas such as the therapeutic alliance and process the development of the counsellor and the person centred perspective in relation to psychopathology are examined in this volume An introduction focuses on the importance of training in depth expressing caution about adopting the more advanced methods illustrated in the book without rigorous preparation and provides a summary of the central features of person centred counselling Following on from this the volume s 30 sections are organized into six categories each of which will help practising counsellors improve their skills within the person centred approach

Existential Perspectives on Supervision Emmy van Deurzen, Sarah Young, 2009-07-31 Supervision is an essential part of counselling and psychotherapy practice It is increasingly recognised as a tool for ensuring high professional standards In an era of regulation and tightening control there is a growing professional need to take stock and reflect on what it means to work with human problems It is vital that therapists address the moral and philosophical dimensions of their profession and ask themselves what it is to be human This rich and far reaching book explores supervision from this timely philosophical perspective Designed both for trainees and more seasoned professionals whatever their theoretical orientation it makes a clear case for seeing existential perspectives on supervision as complementary to rather than as a substitute for other forms of supervision In doing so the book Allows for an integration of existential supervision within a consistent cross theoretical framework Helps readers to take better account of the personal ethical political and cultural dimensions of their work Promises to rekindle practitioners passion for their therapeutic work whilst broadening their vision

The Stresses of Counselling in Action Windy Dryden, 1995-01-24 Counsellors frequently work with people who are under stress or who are distressed but counselling them can itself be a highly stressful activity This supportive book examines the sources of stress for counsellors and the practical strategies that they can use to overcome it Stress may emerge in the work that counsellors do with specific client groups in the contexts in which counselling takes place and in the educational process both for counsellor educators and for counsellors in training In this book practising counsellors with first hand experience of dealing with stress examine the nature of the stresses that counsellors face in these different areas detail the typical responses both healthy and unhealthy tha
