Perspectives On Software Documentation Inquiries And Innovations Baywoods Technical Communications Series:

Perspectives on Software Documentation Thomas T. Barker, 1991 Two unmistakable trends in software documentation emerge from the academic literature of the last few years The first trend is toward usability as the standard for all software documentation The second trend is toward online presentation as the primary preferred medium for software documentation As we shall see this medium allows a number of new interface elements to fall under the broad umbrella of software documentation In fact the evidence of these trends tends to suggest that we need to broaden our definition of software documentation It is toward this broadening that this book inclines This book is designed to address the randomness of the literature on software documentation Perspectives on Software Documentation contains a variety of perspectives all tied together by the shared need to make software products more usable Perspectives on Software Documentation Thomas Barker, 2020-11-25 This book is designed to address the randomness of the literature on software documentation As anyone interested in software documentation is aware the field is highly synthetic information about software documentation may be found in engineering computer science training technical communication management education and so on Perspectives on Software Documentation contains a variety of perspectives all tied together by the shared need to make software products more usable Perspectives on Software Documentation Thomas T. Nonacademic Writing Ann Hill Duin,Craig J. Hansen,2013-11-05 In this volume methodological cultural technological and political boundaries felt by writers are analyzed translated and challenged in a way that will appeal to researchers theorists graduate students instructors and managerial audiences Instead of extracting rules from previous research the contributors working from multidisciplinary perspectives describe and analyze the social and technological contexts surrounding nonacademic writing Their essays present a formative rather than summative outlook toward future research on nonacademic writing Collectively these chapters articulate a unique perspective toward nonacademic writing that considers The centrality of emerging communications technologies in nonacademic writing research and the need for a socio technological perspective New technologies reshape the concept of text and significantly impact the writing process and written products in nonacademic settings The relationship between the academy and the workplace A number of chapters challenge us sometimes from opposing perspectives to scrutinize our role as writing educators in preparing students for the workplace Should we support the interests of corporate employers or should we resist those interests Should we enculturate students in workplace writing practices by placing them in these environments or should we examine the tacit knowledge gained by workplace professionals and deliver this via classroom instruction New theory new research agendas Contributors from diverse fields offer new theoretical lenses or use established lenses in innovative ways expanding the agenda for nonacademic writing research This volume represents the vision the social landscape demands for research and pedagogy in nonacademic writing
