The New Deal

Reading Comprehension

Read the passage and answer the questions.

The Great Depression was a severe economic downturn that began in 1929 and lasted until the mid-1930s. It was characterized by widespread unemployment, poverty, and a collapse in consumer spending.

The New Deal was a series of programs and policies implemented by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to provide relief, recovery, and reform during the Great Depression.

The New Deal was designed to provide immediate relief to the unemployed and the poor, to create jobs through public works projects, and to establish a system of social insurance to protect against future economic downturns.

The Social Security Act was a key component of the New Deal, establishing a system of social insurance that provided unemployment benefits, old-age pensions, and aid to the dependent children of the unemployed.

The New Deal also included a variety of other programs, such as the Federal Reserve Act, the National Industrial Recovery Act, and the National Labor Relations Act, all of which were designed to stabilize the economy and promote recovery.

The New Deal was a landmark moment in American history, and its legacy is still felt today. It established a new role for the federal government in the economy and laid the foundation for the modern welfare state.

The New Deal was a response to the crisis of the Great Depression, and it was a bold experiment in government intervention. It was a time of great challenges, but it was also a time of great opportunity, and the New Deal was a testament to the power of government to make a difference.
