R. Bhagavan,1999 The Nineties saw a fundamental shift in the policy and practice governing the pricing and marketing of petroleum products in Sub Saharan Africa Strict government control was replaced by liberalisation Oil multinationals have been permitted once more to pursue their own strategies in importing and retailing petroleum products This has profound consequences for access and affordability by both urban and rural users for subsidies to ease the price burden on low income groups for tax revenues for opportunities for price fixing and oligopoly by multinationals and most importantly for generating investment for expanding the retail network beyond the metropolitan areas In this volume these issues are examined in depth in the context of two very different cases Kenya where full liberalisation has been achieved and Ethiopia where the transition from state control to liberalisation has only just begun A comparative analysis of these two cases yields valuable insights into policies and strategies that African countries need to deploy for ensuring lasting benefits from the imperative of liberalisation
