barbarians who experienced ethnogenesis or cultural assimilation The same Romans who disparaged barbarian behavior also adopted aspects of it in their everyday lives providing graphic examples of the ambiguity and negotiation that characterized the integration of Romans and barbarians a process that altered the concepts of identity of both populations The resultant late antique polyethnic cultural world with cultural frontiers between Romans and barbarians that became increasingly permeable in both directions does much to help explain how the barbarian settlement of the west was accomplished with much less disruption than there might have been and how barbarian populations were integrated seamlessly into the old Roman world

Temples and Sanctuaries in the Roman East Arthur Segal, 2013-10-31 This lavishly illustrated volume presents a comprehensive architectural study of 87 individual temples and sanctuaries built in the Roman East between the end of the 1st century BCE and the end of the 3rd century CE within a broad region encompassing the modern states of Syria Lebanon Israel and Jordan Religious architecture gave faithful expression to the complexity of the Roman East and to its multiplicity of traditions pertaining to ethnic and religious aspects as well as to the powerful influence of Imperial Rome The source of this power lay in the uniformity of the architectural language the inventory of forms the choice of styles and the spatial layout of the buildings Thus while temples have an eclectic character there is an underlying unity of form comprising the podium the stairway between the terminating walls antae and the columns along the entrance front in other words the axially frontality and symmetry of the temple as viewed from outside The temples and sanctuaries studied in this volume demonstrate individual nuances of plan spatial design location in the sanctuary and interrelations with the immediate vicinity but can be divided into two main categories Vitruvian temples derived from Hellenistic Roman architecture and Non Vitruvian temples those with plans and spatial designs that cannot be analysed according to architectural criteria such as those defined by Vitruvius The individual descriptions presented focus solely upon the analysis of the external and internal space of the temples of all types and do not involve any cultural or ethnic discussion Zeitschrift des Deutschen
