Russia has traditionally been one of the two main strategic partners for Europe in its space endeavor. Hitherto long-standing cooperation has been nurtured between the two actors in various areas from scientific research to space transportation and human spaceflight. In recent years, however, a number of endogenous and exogenous developments has triggered significant changes in Russia's space posture. These changes are evident in the adjustment of Russia's space policies and programmatic goals in the restructuring of the domestic space industry as well as in the attitude towards international space partnerships.
