Natural Language Processing and Information Systems Andrés Montoyo, Rafael Munoz, Elisabeth Métais, 2005-06-01 NLDB 2005 the 10th International Conference on Applications of Natural Language to Information Systems was held on June 15 17 2005 at the University of Alicante Spain Since the rst NLDB conference in 1995 the main goal has been to provide a forum to discuss and disseminate research on the integration of natural language resources in information system engineering The development and convergence of computing telecommunications and information systems has already led to a revolution in the way that we work communicate with each other buy goods and use services and even in the way that we entertain and educate ourselves The revolution continues and one of its results is that large volumes of information will increasingly be held in a form which is more natural for users than the data presentation formats typical of computer systems of the past Natural language processing NLP is crucial in solving these problems and language technologies will make an indispensable contribution to the success of information systems We hope that NLDB 2005 was a modest contribution to this goal NLDB 2005 contributed to advancing the goals and the high international standing of these conferences largely due to its Program Committee composed of renowned researchers in the field of natural language processing and information system engineering Papers were reviewed by three reviewers from the Program Committee This clearly contributed to the significant number of papers submitted 95 Twenty nine were accepted as regular papers while 18 were accepted as short papers Annual

Old Russian Possessive Constructions Hanne Martine Eckhoff, 2011-10-27 This book is a detailed study of the possessive semantic space within the framework of construction grammar Using corpus data from Old Church Slavonic and Old Russian the book uses semantic maps to document the relationship between form and meaning in a set of semantically closely related syntactic constructions that can all express adnominal possession and all partially overlap The book also traces the development of these constructions from the earliest Slavic attestations towards Modern Russian thus also using the semantic maps as a diachronic tool This approach results in a much improved analysis of the data at hand The competing possessive constructions are treated as partly synonymous constructions in the same semantic space Changes are then seen to follow paths in this space The constructionist perspective also allows discerning the relative contributions of the possessor nominal the possessee nominal and properties of the constructions themselves The book is a contribution to Slavic historical linguistics to the general understanding of adnominal possession and to forwarding functionalist approaches to syntactic change

Event Arguments Claudia Maienborn, Angelika Wöllstein-Leisten, 2005 Since entering the stage Davidsonian event arguments have taken on a central role in linguistic theorizing Recent years have seen a continuous extension of possible applications for them not only in semantics but also in syntax At the same time questions concerning the ontological status of events have received renewed attention This collection of articles provides new evidence for the virtually ubiquitous presence of event arguments in linguistic structure and sheds new light on their nature The volume is organized into four sections Events states causation Event nominals Events in composition Measuring events

Copular Sentences in Russian Asya Pereltsvaig, 2007-04-06 This book provides a detailed study and a novel Minimalist account of copular sentences in Russian focusing on case marking alternations nominative vs instrumental and drawing a distinction between two types of copular sentences On the assumption that Merge is defined in the simplest way possible it is argued that not all syntactic structures are anti symmetrical One of the copular sentence types is analyzed as a poster child for symmetrical structures while the other type is treated as asymmetrical The originality of this study lies in treating the copula in the two types of copular sentences neither as completely identical nor as two distinct lexical items instead the two types of copula are derived through the process of semantic bleaching Furthermore it is argued that the two types of the copula need to combine with post copular phrases of different categories It is concluded that Russian draws a distinction between saturated DPs and unsaturated NPs in spite of its renowned lack of overt articles Proceedings from Semantics and Linguistic Theory X
