environments see Table 2 There is no intent to express a preference for any particular set of terminology Similarly this standard uses a neutral set of names for the phases of a product's life cycle which are generic enough to be easily mapped to the myriad of different life cycle models in use Table 1 illustrates some of the aliases for each phase name and identifies characteristics that apply to each one Regardless of the titles chosen for these phases or what the product is i e a facility software an airplane or a machine screw at some point in its history a product will go through all or most of these phases The phases can have considerable overlap or the sequence of the phases might change or be repeated e g for product improvements and enhancements Approved configurations of a product can be in the build distribution operation and disposal phases simultaneously and changes to those configurations may occur during all life cycle phases Appropriate application of CM functions enables a user of this standard to plan and implement a CM program for a product project or enterprise All functions apply during every phase of the product's life cycle but the degree to which each of the CM principles applies may vary A scalable CM process should be defined measured continuously improved and adhered to that is commensurate with the product's complexity its intended use and its value over the product life cycle An organization that has the responsibility for performing Configuration Management for a product during any period of its life cycle could be a commercial enterprise e g contractor subcontractor supplier or government agency References in this standard to the acquirer i e customer should be interpreted as the entity that specifies requirements functional and performance attributes for the product or that acquires and uses the product An acquirer may be external to the developing and producing organization or may be internal such as marketing management or the using department Configuration Management functions related to a product may be the responsibility of several organizations during its life cycle For example an organization with the responsibility to design and build a product will perform Configuration Management during the definition and build phases other organizations or government activities with responsibility for upgrading the product and servicing units will perform Configuration Management during the operation phase GEIA HB 649 Configuration Management Standard Implementation Guide provides additional how to guidance for planning managing and implementing CM functions and principles This standard was revised to clarify principles content and to remove opinions in order to improve the quality and adoptability by all enterprises whether commercial or government regardless of industry
