Promoting Environmentalism:

Environmental Engagement and Cultural Value: Global Perspectives for Protecting the Natural World Fanli Jia, Tobias Krettenauer, 2020-02-04 Environmental issues are a rapidly growing focal point in today's global discussion. These issues are becoming increasingly pertinent due to the potentially devastating outcomes of human environmental carelessness. As a species, humans now have realized the need for worldwide environmental engagement. This engagement is intended to heighten awareness about environmental problems, build knowledge in education, and change human behaviors to improve sustainability. Synthesizing the literature on cultural dimensions, e.g., attitudes, beliefs, values, that undergird positive views of environmental issues, and engagement of sustainability practices would significantly contribute to the development of effective approaches to fostering sustainable environmental practices. Through the identification of commonalities across cultures and sensitivity to cultural differences, we can begin to work toward a global consensus on viable solutions. This critical issue.

Marketing to the Poor Ramendra Singh, Tahir A. Wani, 2022-10-12 This book looks at markets in low-income economies and how they require fundamentally different marketing systems and strategies. Analyzing the sociocultural characteristics of these markets, it offers solutions for businesses to overcome spatial, institutional, and financial challenges while working in these contexts. Markets for the poor are characterized by resource scarcity, weak institutions, and low literacy rates, as well as a strong presence of cultural and community ties. This book provides an understanding of these marketplaces, including the consumer's wants and aspirations, the relationship of the individual within the social milieu, and their unique cultural contexts. It provides strategies for businesses to develop a bottom-up knowledge of global markets and incorporates practices which are inclusive and sustainable. It also explores the links between human development, entrepreneurship, and marketing, which are especially relevant in the pandemic-hit global economy. This book will be of interest to students and researchers of marketing, business studies, business administration, rural management, marketing management, economics, and development studies.

Environmentalism Ronie Garcia-Johnson, 1998      The Sociology of the Environment M. R. Redclift, Graham Woodgate, 1995. In The Sociology of the Environment, Michael Redclift and Graham Woodgate have brought together a diverse collection of writings from within the human sciences. These papers chart the progress which sociology has made in addressing the environment. Although they are not all written by sociologists, they do illuminate a number of largely unresolved issues for sociology which mark important departures for the discipline and which necessitate a radical rethink of inherited assumptions. The readings are organized under a number of different themes ranging from the theoretical foundations of the discipline to post-industrial Utopianism. Other areas covered include Marxism and the environment, neo-Malthusianism, and environmental determination, biocentric theories, radical ecology, scientific enquiry, and the environment, international perspective, and social movement and the environment. The editors conclude that sociology still has much to do in rising to the challenge of interpreting environmental change, indicating that this must be done by forging relationships with other disciplines in which the contribution that sociology can make is underlined rather than lost.

The End of Charity Nic Frances, 2008-05-01. Nic Frances is a social entrepreneur. He once worked for charity. This is the story of how he came to understand that charity can never deliver a just and sustainable world. It is only through a value-centred market economy that we will ever see real social change. Breaking new ground and drawing on his encounters with business and social leaders around the world, as well as his own richly lived experiences, Nic Frances leads us through his principles of social entrepreneurship. He introduces us to the powerful idea that the market can be a tool for delivering a range of values besides profit. He explains the growing recognition that corporate social responsibility benefits businesses as well as the community and that welfare organisations will only be really effective when they start exploring social enterprise and corporate partnerships The End of Charity is as hopeful and as it is inspiring It heralds a breakthrough to lasting change to the seemingly intractable problems of poverty injustice and environmental sustainability It is a book for everybody who cares about the future     Environmental Learning for the 21st Century Centre for Educational Research and Innovation,1995 Raising the environmental awareness of the population is a central element for developing a sustainable environment This report is intended to highlight how schools teachers and students in Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development OECD countries are attempting to meet the challenge of building a sustainable society through environmental education The main pedagogical and research issues discussed in this report reflect intense work that was carried out in the participating countries at the grass roots or school level Chapter I addresses the challenges of international environmental education Chapter II deals with the pedagogical curricular and teacher development questions that resulted from an analysis of national reports Chapter III concentrates on action research as it was implemented in the countries that used it as a tool in developing school initiatives Policy issues are addressed in Chapter IV from an analysis of the outcomes of the five in depth studies on environmental education policy that were carried out in Australia Austria Finland Germany and Norway Chapter V concludes with some basic dilemmas concerning present developments in environmental education and makes recommendations for the future Contains 57 references JRH     Selected Readings from Wastelands News on Ecology, Livestock, Gender, Governance, Landuse-- ,2006 Partly with reference to India     Transnational Environmental Politics Vanessa Joan Gray,2000     Corporate Facilities-management Policies, Structures, and Strategies Developed to Cope with Environmental Issues Laura Means Pope,1992     Parliamentary Debates Singapore.
