authoritative accounts of the approaches and methodologies of modern lexicography and of the aims and qualities of its end products. The book is divided into four parts reflecting the main types of lexicography. Part I looks at synchronic dictionaries: those for the general public, monolingual dictionaries for second language learners and bilingual dictionaries. Part II and III are devoted to the distinctive methodologies and concerns of the historical dictionaries and specialist dictionaries respectively, while chapters in Part IV examine specific topics such as description and prescription, the representation of pronunciation and the practicalities of dictionary production. The primary strength of individual chapters lies in the fact that the vast majority report original empirical studies carried out in diverse second foreign language learning contexts investigating interesting issues across various nationalities, ages, educational and professional groups of language learners and teachers.
