Don't Knock the Hustle S. Craig Watkins, 2019-05-07 Offers a timely analysis of the sheer ingenuity and persistence of young people who cobble together the resources they need to pursue the lives and careers they want Young adults are coming of age at a time when work is temporary underpaid incommensurate with their education or downright unsatisfying Despite these challenges media scholar S Craig Watkins argues that this moment of precarity is rife with opportunities for innovation and that young adults are leading the charge in turning that into an inventive and surprisingly sustainable future As a result society is expanding its understanding of who we think of as innovators and what qualifies as innovation while wealth is spreading beyond traditional corridors of powerful tech companies venture capitalism and well endowed universities Drawing on over ten years of interviews and data Watkins reveals the radical ways in which this community of ambitious young creatives is transforming businesses from the outside in Diverse perspectives that are often ignored or silenced by major corporations are garnering public attention as women and people of color are redefining industries across the globe all from their computer screens We meet people like Prince Harvey a New York based hip hop artist who recorded his album entirely on an Apple showroom laptop screenwriter producer and actor Issa Rae who first used YouTube and Kickstarter to develop the web series that became her hit HBO show Insecure the Empowerment Plan a nonprofit organization created by product design student Veronika Scott in Detroit and start up companies like Qeyno Group in San Francisco and Juegos Rancheros in Austin that help make tech more accessible to people of color Forward thinking and dynamic Don t Knock the Hustle shows the diversity and complexity of a generation on the rise UNIQUE APPROACH TO UNDERSTANDING MILLENNIALS that looks beyond stereotypes about their relationships with tech and labor based on two years of MacArthur Grant funded research DIVERSE AUDIENCE APPEAL that will reach millennials educators people seeking to hire millennials and scholars of technology media and labor

The Experimental Nature of New Venture Creation

Martin Curley,Piero Formica,2013-06-13 This book presents readers with the opportunity to fundamentally re evaluate the processes of innovation and entrepreneurship and to rethink how they might best be stimulated and fostered within our organizations and communities The fundamental thesis of the book is that the entrepreneurial process is not a linear progression from novel idea to successful innovation but is an iterative series of experiments where progress depends on the persistence and resilience of the individuals involved and their ability and to learn from failure as well as success From this premise the authors argue that the ideal environment for new venture creation is a form of experimental laboratory a community of innovators where ideas are generated shared and refined experiments are encouraged and which in itself serves as a test environment for those ideas and experiments This environment is quite different from the traditional incubator which may impose the disciplines of the established firm too early in the development of the new venture Featuring case examples of start ups across a wide spectrum of industries from Wikipedia to Ryanair the authors explore the qualities of successful innovation including a high tolerance of risk and unpredictability and commitment to building knowledge enterprises that value intangible assets This volume is a clarion call to those in academia enterprise and government who seek to work together to promote innovation and entrepreneurship with a stark message for academic institutions engage or be left behind
