Peripheral Components ,1992-01-01 Receptors of Cell Adhesion and Cellular Recognition A.G. Lee,1996-06-25

Volume 3 of Biomembranes covers receptors of cell adhesion and cellular recognition Proteins in the plasma membrane of cells are heavily involved in processes of cell adhesion but such proteins were not actually isolated and characterized until the mid 1970s Since then application of the methods of molecular biology has led to the recognition of four major classes of cell adhesion molecule CAMs the immunoglobulin super family the cadherins the integrins and the selecting A convenient system in which to study the importance of cell adhesion is in blood platelets where aggregation eventually leads to thrombus formation in a process involving a range of surface glycoproteins Interaction with the extracellular matrix is exemplified by CD44 the receptor for hyaluronan and a complex carbohydrate that is a major component of the extracellular matrix surrounding migrating and proliferating cells Membrane associated mucins have a variety of effects on cell adhesion The super family of immunoglobulin related proteins also include the T cell receptors and the major histocompatibility complex MHC which together with the receptors for immunoglobulins the Fc receptors are of fundamental importance in the processes of immunity Volume 3 of Biomembranes explores the structures and functions of the molecules involved in these important functions of the cell Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office ,1995 Official
