

RADIO AND TV PRODUCTION

Radio and Television fall under Broadcasting is defined as the distribution of audio and/or video signals that is used to transmit messages to an audience. It can also be defined as the transmission of information through radio waves from a radio or television station, to the audience in far and near places, through their receivers, which help in decoding such information.

NB- Broadcast media includes television/radio news/programs, audio video/production, and, podcasts, social media streaming etc.

Radio and TV are the twin broadcast media, which have established themselves all over the world, the former as a means of transmission of sound and the latter as a means of transmission of moving pictures and sound

The broadcast programme generally falls into three forms, namely: 1. The programmes can be entertaining
2. They can be informative
3. They can be educative

Characteristics of RADIO

- Radio has key characteristics that make it different from television. One, it is an audio-only medium that is heard through a range of physical devices and more recently heard through the internet
- Second, it was originally a more portable medium than TV, due to the easy to carry devices that broadcast radio waves.
