Gender and Space in British Literature, 1660-1820 Mona Narain, Karen Gevirtz, 2016-04-15 Between 1660 and 1820 Great Britain experienced significant structural transformations in class politics economy print and writing that produced new and varied spaces and with them new and reconfigured concepts of gender In mapping the relationship between gender and space in British literature of the period this collection defines charts and explores new cartographies both geographic and figurative The contributors take up a variety of genres and discursive frameworks from this period including poetry the early novel letters and laboratory notebooks written by authors ranging from Aphra Behn Hortense Mancini and Isaac Newton to Frances Burney and Germaine de Sta l Arranged in three groups Inside Outside and Borderlands the essays conduct targeted literary analysis and explore the changing relationship between gender and different kinds of spaces in the long eighteenth century In addition a set of essays on Charlotte Smith s novels and a set of essays on natural philosophy offer case studies for exploring issues of gender and space within larger fields such as an author s oeuvre or a particular discourse Taken together the essays demonstrate space s agency as a complement to historical change as they explore how literature delineates the gendered redefinition occupation negotiation inscription and creation of new spaces crucially contributing to the construction of new cartographies in eighteenth and early nineteenth century England

The Private World of Ottoman Women 1997, Ottoman Women, History and Capitalism Julie Marcus, 1987 Within anthropological and historical studies of Middle Eastern women there are often difficulties in overcoming the assumptions embedded in orientalist knowledge Many of the arguments in the literature revolve around problems of similarity and difference and in this paper I argue that a solution to these problems can be determined only at the theoretical level As a contribution toward a theoretical solution the historical and sociological framework of world systems theory is used to interpret the economic changes brought about by the introduction of western European capital into Ottoman lands A speculative model of the impact of capital on the status of Ottoman women is then introduced I argue that the economic decline of the Ottoman Empire from the eighteenth century onward affected women in gender specific ways and that in general urban women lost the protection of the law upon which their well being depended
