The Sandbar , Water Capitalism Walter E. Block, Peter L. Nelson, 2015-10-30 Water covers some 75% of the earth's surface while land covers 25% approximately Yet the former accounts for less than 1% of world GDP the latter 99% plus Part of the reason for this imbalance is that there are more people located on land than water But a more important explanation is that while land is privately owned water is unowned with the exception of a few small lakes and ponds or governmentally owned rivers large lakes This gives rise to the tragedy of the commons when something is unowned people have less of an incentive to care for it preserve it and protect it than when they own it As a result we have oil spills depletion of fish stocks threatened extinction of some species e.g. whales shark attacks polluted and dried up rivers misallocated water unsafe boating piracy and other indices of economic disarray which if they had occurred on the land would have been more easily identified as the result of the tragedy of the commons and or government ownership and mismanagement The purpose of this book is to make the case for privatization of all bodies of water without exception In the tragic example of the Soviet Union the 97% of the land owned by the state accounted for 75% of the crops On the 3% of the land privately owned 25% of the crops were grown The obvious mandate requires that we privatize the land and prosper The present volume applies this lesson in detail to bodies of water

Conservation for the Anthropocene Ocean Phillip S. Levin, Melissa R. Poe, 2017-06-01

Conservation for the Anthropocene Ocean Interdisciplinary Science in Support of Nature and People emphasizes strategies to better connect the practice of marine conservation with the needs and priorities of a growing global human population It conceptualizes nature and people as part of shared ecosystems with interdisciplinary methodologies and science based applications for coupled sustainability A central challenge facing conservation is the development of practical means for addressing the interconnectedness of ecosystem health and human well being advancing the fundamental interdisciplinary science that underlies conservation practice and implementing this science in decisions to manage preserve and restore ocean ecosystems Though humans have intentionally and unintentionally reshaped their environments for thousands of years the scale and scope of human influence upon the oceans in the Anthropocene is unprecedented Ocean science has increased our knowledge of the threats and impacts to ecological integrity yet the unique scale and scope of changes increases uncertainty about responses of dynamic socio ecological systems Thus to understand and protect the biodiversity of the ocean and ameliorate the negative impacts of ocean change on people it is critical to understand human beliefs values behaviors and impacts Conversely on a human dominated planet it is impossible to understand and address human well being and chart a course for sustainable use of the oceans without understanding the implications of environmental change for human societies that depend on marine ecosystems and resources This work therefore presents a timely needed and interdisciplinary approach to the conservation of our oceans Helps marine conservation scientists apply principles from oceanography ecology anthropology economics political science and other natural and social sciences to manage and preserve marine biodiversity Facilitates understanding of how and why social and environmental processes are coupled in the quest to achieve healthy and sustainable oceans Uses a combination of expository material practical approaches and forward looking theoretical discussions to enhance value for readers as they consider conservation research management and planning
