Privatization And Investment In Sub Saharan Africa:

Privatization and Investment in Sub-Saharan Africa Rexford A. Ahene, Bernard S. Katz, 1992-05-21 This contributed volume examines development efforts in sub Saharan Africa and the role privatization and foreign investment can play The focus is on African and international capital mobility and recent experience in private investment in contemporary African states While government in Africa continues to have a hand in economic and political matters private enterprise private investment and market forces are becoming increasingly active The volume reveals these new directions in development practice in Africa and analyzes the difficulties which government while well intended has created in the past Contributors from the United States and Africa pose questions and examine scenarios for investment in sub Saharan Africa And while no single strategy is agreed upon they provide overwhelming evidence that it has been the failure of prior central policies which has held these nations back and that hope for the 1990 s lies in the unleashing of the private sector This work will be of interest to scholars and policy makers in development economics international trade and finance and African studies U.S. Trade and Investment with Sub-Saharan Africa, 2nd Annual Report, Inv. 332-415 , U.S. Trade and Investment with Sub-Saharan Africa ,2000 U.S. Trade and Investment with Sub-Saharan Africa, 1st Annual Report, Inv. 332-415 , Privatizing Africa's Infrastructure Michel Kerf, Warrick Smith, 1996-01-01 This paper examines the promise and challenge of infrastructure privatization in sub Saharan Africa with particular emphasis on power telecommunications water rail ports and airports The paper places primary emphasis on mobilizing private investment in infrastructure To realize the potential of infrastructure privatization in sub Saharan Africa four main challenges must be addressed a concerns over market size affordability and payment risks b establishing adequate legal and regulatory frameworks c dealing with non commercial risks and d mobilizing local finance The paper examines these four areas and gives elements of a future strategy for the World Bank Group A Strategy to Develop Agriculture in Sub-Saharan Africa and a Focus for the World Bank Kevin M. Cleaver, 1993-01-01 For 25 years population growth has outpaced increases in agricultural production in Sub Saharan Africa The lack of food and the degradation of agricultural land have forced policymakers to reassess agricultural strategies for the region This paper provides such a reassessment by identifying policies and investments that have worked and those that have not The author sets out the common elements required for agricultural and rural development throughout the region The strategy presented in this paper comprises elements from several development sectors including transport water supply education finance and the environment The author makes five broad recommendations to promote Region adoption of policies to promote private sector farming and agricultural marketing processing and credit development and distribution of new technologies inclusion of farmers in decisions affecting their livelihood development of infrastructure and social programs in support of agriculture improved management of natural resources Projections of the likely effects of the proposed policies and investments are included Tables throughout the text present statistics on agricultural growth rates commodity prices and deforestation in the region An annex contains more general tables with information on population growth and fertility rates land use agricultural exports and droughts The strategies suggested in this paper will be of interest to policymakers academics and to development practitioners involved in African agriculture

Current Bibliographical Information Dag Hammarskjöld Library, 1992      Privatization of Parastatals George Bryan Samah, 2007 In the pursuit of policies and approaches that would sustain and accelerate economic development after the declared departure of colonial powers African governments set up parastatals to serve as conduit for economic development through which governments could deliver services to the general populace However there is evidence that most parastatals do not utilize resources efficiently instead they impose heavy burdens on public resources and distort their use in the economy Given the shortcomings of parastatals in the 1980s the World Bank the International Monetary Fund IMF USAID and other international donor agencies came to Africa with a philosophy of privatization These multi national corporations and donor agencies discretely advocated the overhauling of parastatals but the suggested processes and methods to this end were vague Nonetheless the arm twisting strategies of multi national corporations and international donors forced African governments to succumb to the philosophy of privatization Unfortunately in general the philosophy policies and practices of privatization operated to the economic detriment of African countries Thus as pursued in this text it is actively compelling that the process of privatization be examined critically considering advantages and disadvantages as well as the economic profitability for countries in sub Saharan Africa
