Probability Theory Yuan Shih Chow, Henry Teicher, 2012-11-28 Now available in paperback This is a text comprising the major theorems of probability theory and the measure theoretical foundations of the subject The main topics treated are independence interchangeability and martingales particular emphasis is placed upon stopping times both as tools in proving theorems and as objects of interest themselves No prior knowledge of measure theory is assumed and a unique feature of the book is the combined presentation of measure and probability It is easily adapted for graduate students familiar with measure theory as indicated by the guidelines in the preface Special features include A comprehensive treatment of the law of the iterated logarithm the Marcinkiewicz Zygmund inequality its extension to martingales and applications thereof development and applications of the second moment analogue of Wald's equation limit theorems for martingale arrays the central limit theorem for the interchangeable and martingale cases moment convergence in the central limit theorem complete discussion including central limit theorem of the random casting of r balls into n cells recent martingale inequalities Cramér-Lévy theorem and factor closed families of distributions This edition includes a section dealing with U statistic adds additional theorems and examples and includes simpler versions of some proofs Probability Theory Y. Probability theory is a branch of mathematics dealing with chance phenomena and has clearly discernible links with the real world The origins of the subject generally attributed to investigations by the renowned French mathematician Fermat of problems posed by a gambling contemporary to Pascal have been pushed back a century earlier to the Italian mathematicians Cardano and Tartaglia about 1570 Results as significant as the Bernoulli weak law of large numbers appeared as early as 1713 although its counterpart the Borel strong law of large numbers did not emerge until 1909 Central limit theorems and conditional probabilities were already being investigated in the eighteenth century but the first serious attempts to grapple with the logical foundations of probability seem to be Keynes 1921 von Mises 1928 1931 and Kolmogorov 1933 An axiomatic model and measure theoretic framework for probability theory was furnished by Kolmogorov In this so called objective or measure theoretic approach definitions and axioms are so chosen that the empirical realization of an event is the outcome of a not completely determined physical experiment an experiment which is at least conceptually capable of indefinite repetition this notion is due to von Mises The concrete or intuitive counterpart of the probability of an event is a long run or limiting frequency of the corresponding outcome Encyclopaedia of Mathematical Sciences Yuan Shih Chow, 1988 inequality upcrossing lemma time reversed martingales a variety of convergence results and a limited discussion of the Burkholder inequalities Applications include the 0-1 laws of Kolmogorov and Hewitt-Savage the strong laws for U-statistics and exchangeable sequences De Finetti's theorem for exchangeable sequences and Kakutani's theorem for product martingales A simple central limit theorem for martingales is proven and applied to a basic urn model the trace of a random matrix and Markov chains Additional topics include forward martingale representation for U-statistics conditional Borel-Cantelli lemma Azuma-Hoeffding inequality conditional three-series theorem strong law for martingales and the Kesten-Stigum theorem for a simple branching process The prerequisite for this course is a first course in measure-theoretic probability The book recollects its essential concepts and results mostly without proof but full details have been provided for the Radon-Nikodym theorem and the concept of conditional expectation
