Problems of Personality; Studies Presented to Dr. Morton Prince, Pioneer in American Psychopathology. BOARD OF EDITORS C. MACFIE CAMPBELL, AND OTHERS. (New York: Harcourt, Brace & Company, 1925.)

An interesting collection of some twenty-four essays combined as a volume of the International Library of Psychology, Philosophy and Scientific Method, issued under the general editorial direction of Prof. C. K. Ogden. The subject matter of these writings includes an historical review of witchcraft, "Some Medical Aspects of Witchcraft," by Dr. E. W. Taylor, and a number of papers on general psychological topics, psychological philosophy, "neuro-psychology," psychoanalysis—its theory and philosophy—and social psychology. The first chapter is an essay by Dr. G. Elliot Smith, in which consideration of anthropological evolution leads over into interpretation of present culture under the heading "The Thralldom of Catch-Phrases." Vision is identified as the foundation of vertebrate mental power. The importance of speech is stressed: "Man, in fact, is the only living creature capable of building up a body of knowledge and tradition." "Yet the real explanation of how such customs and beliefs develop is the most vital problem of mankind. . . . The custom of using technical terms and phrases for the purpose of evading frank and direct examination of the facts has become so serious a menace to the acquisition of a sane understanding of the behavior of men . . . [as to constitute] the chief obstacle that interferes with progress at the present time." This eminent anthropologist is identified with the "diffusionist" school, which is opposed perhaps most ably by Prof. B. Malinowski.

The psychoanalytic papers in the volume include "Abnormal Psychology and Social Psychology" by Ernest Jones; an essay in which McDougall criticizes Freud's "Group Psychology and the Analysis of the Ego"—"My verdict is 'not proven and wildly improbable.' . . . I, for one, shall continue to try to avoid the spell of the primal horde father and to use what intellect I have . . ."; and a criticism "The Unconscious in Psychoanalysis" by H. H. Goddard.

On the subject of psychopathological theory there is an excellent paper by Dr. Bernard Hart, "The Development of Psychopathology as a Branch of Science." This is a most scholarly conspectus of its subject which should receive wide reading. The evolution of certain important conceptions is mentioned: dissociation which "may be regarded as the first-fruit of psychopathology," suggestion, the dynamic group including conflict, repression, etc. There is a consideration of the Unconscious and the Sex Theories. "It is at least clear that the 'facts' of observation, upon which the Freudian concep-

PREFACE THE Author of this very practical treatise on Scotch Loch Fishing desires clearly that it may be of use to all who had it He does not pretend to have written anything new but to have attempted to put what he has to say in as readable a form as possible Everything in the way of the history and habits of fish has been studiously avoided and technicalities have been used as sparingly as possible The writing of this book has afforded him pleasure in his leisure moments and that pleasure would be much increased if he knew that the perusal of it would create any bond of sympathy between himself and the angling community in general This section is interleaved with blank sheets for the readers notes The Author need hardly say that any suggestions addressed to the case of the publishers will meet with consideration in a future edition We do not pretend to write or enlarge upon a new subject Much has been said and written and well said and written too on the art of fishing but loch fishing has been rather looked upon as a second rate performance and to dispel this idea is one of the objects for which this present treatise has been written Far be it from us to say anything against fishing lawfully practised in any form but many pent up in our large towns will bear us out when we say that on the whole a days loch fishing is the most convenient One great matter is that the loch fisher is dependent on nothing but enough wind to curl the water and on a large loch it is very seldom that a dead calm prevails all day and can make his arrangements for a day weeks beforehand whereas the stream fisher is dependent for a good take on the state of the water and however pleasant and easy it may be for one living near the banks of a good trout stream or river it is quite another matter to arrange for a days river fishing if one is looking forward to a holiday at a date some weeks ahead Providence may favour the expectant angler with a good day and the water in order but experience has taught most of us that the good days are in the minority and that as is the case with our rapid running streams such as many of our northern streams are the water is either too large or too small unless as previously remarked you live near at hand and can catch it at its best A common belief in regard to loch fishing is that the tyro and the experienced angler have nearly the same chance in fishing the one from the stern and the other from the bow of the same boat Of all the absurd beliefs as to loch fishing this is one of the most absurd Try it Give the tyro either end of the boat he likes give him a cast of ally flies he may fancy or even a cast similar to those which a crack may be using and if he catches one for every three the other has he may consider himself very lucky Of course there are lochs where the fish are not abundant and a beginner may come across as many as an older fisher but we speak of lochs where there are fish to be caught and where each has a fair chance Again it is said that the boatman has as much to do with catching trout in a loch as the angler Well we dont deny that In an untried loch it is necessary to have the guidance of a good boatman but the same argument holds good as to stream fishing      Problems of Personality Charles Macfie Campbell,1999 First published in 1999 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company      Problems of Personality Charles Macfie Campbell,1932
