The Roman Fort of Vindolanda P T Bidwell,2014-06-15 This work is principally an account of excavations carried out at Vindolanda in 1980 but also reviews the available evidence for the history of the fort and vicus Early timber forts were succeeded by a stone fort in the Hadrianic period perhaps in c 122 4 Reconstruction of some interior buildings were erected in the northern part of the praetentura they are thought to have been houses accommodating a civilian work force under military control West of the fort lay a number of buildings apparently serving as a military annexe rather than civilian vicus The fort was almost entirely rebuilt in c 223 5 retaining only parts of the original west and east walls After a delay of about a decade when part of the garrison was probably posted elsewhere a double barrack block was erected in the north east corner of the fort possibly to accommodate cavalry The building underwent a number of alterations and remained in use until c 400 There are slight indications of activity on the site subsequent to that date Rebuilding of the fort in c 223 5 was accompanied by construction of an extensive vicus which was largely abandoned by the last quarter of the third century Foremost amongst the finds was a fragment of a military diploma issued to a soldier of cohors Tungrorum There were numerous objects of iron and copper alloy A considerable quantity of pottery was recovered from a sequence of third and fourth century deposits Coin finds from the fort and vicus are compared and their significance discussed An Artistic and Cultural Analysis of

Corbridge M C Bishop,J N Dore,2014-06-30 Corbridge some 4km south of Hadrian s Wall was the site of an important Roman river crossing From the mid 80s to about 160s AD this was protected by a series of forts which underlie the remains of the later garrison town now visible on the site This volume presents the results of excavations carried out between 1947 and 1980 beneath and around the later masonry buildings which have helped to reveal the complex history of the sequence of mainly earth and timber forts which preceded them After an introduction which describes how the analysis of excavation data collected over many seasons work has been undertaken and summarising previous work on the site a major new consideration of the crop mark evidence for the site is presented There follows an examination of the site covering the fort buildings area by area principia praetorium barracks defences and other areas The evidence is complex and the separate phases of development of each area are fully illustrated A selection of finds illustrated in details and chosen for their stratigraphic relevance or intrinsic value is studied in a series of specialist reports The conclusion explores a new interpretation of the earlier phases of fort occupation at Roman Corbridge The Journal of Roman Studies ,1937
