Mathematics Tomorrow L.A. Steen, 2012-12-06 Mathematics today is approaching a state of crisis As the demands of science and society for mathematical literacy increase the percentage of American college students intending to major in mathematics plummets and achievement scores of entering college students continue their unremitting decline As research in core mathematics reaches unprecedented heights of power and sophistication the growth of diverse applied specialties threatens to fragment mathematics into distinct and frequently hostile mathematical sciences These crises in mathematics presage difficulties for science and engineering and alarms are beginning to sound in the scientific and even in the political communities Citing a trend towards virtual scientific and technological illiteracy and a shrinking of our national commitment to excellence in science mathematics and technology a recent study conducted for the President by the U S National Science Foundation and Department of Education warns of serious impending shortcomings in public understanding of science Today people in a wide range of non scientific professions must have a greater understanding of technology than at any time in our history Yet our educational system does not now provide such understanding The study goes on to conclude that present trends pose great risk of manpower shortages in the mathematical and engineering sciences The pool from which our future scientific and engineering personnel can be drawn is in danger of becoming smaller even as the need for such personnel is increasing It is time to take a serious look at mathematics tomorrow

Jardine, 1999 Since the beginning of the modern era of algebraic topology simplicial methods have been used systematically and effectively for both computation and basic theory With the development of Quillen's concept of a closed model category and in particular a simplicial model category this collection of methods has become the primary way to describe non abelian homological algebra and to address homotopy theoretical issues in a variety of fields including algebraic K theory This book supplies a modern exposition of these ideas emphasizing model category theoretical techniques Discussed here are the homotopy theory of simplicial sets and other basic topics such as simplicial groups Postnikov towers and bisimplicial sets The more advanced material includes homotopy limits and colimits localization with respect to a map and with respect to a homology theory cosimplicial spaces and homotopy coherence Interspersed throughout are many results and ideas well known to experts but uncollected in the literature Intended for second year graduate students and beyond this book introduces many of the basic tools of modern homotopy theory An extensive background in topology is not assumed
