Foreign Direct Investment in Central Europe and Differences in Transition between post- communist Central European Economies Jan Angenendt, 2010-11-09 Inhaltsangabe Introduction The transition process from a centrally planned to a market economy followed a very different path in East Germany compared to all other former communist countries The German Democratic Republic acceded the Federal Republic of Germany in 1990 while other former socialist countries in Central and Eastern Europe CEE had to start from square one after becoming independent from the USSR In contrast to other post soviet countries East Germany subsequently received massive transfers from the Western part of the country A significant part of these transfers was invested into infrastructure improvement while a larger share was spent for consumption raising the purchasing power in the East of Germany allowing it to sustain a higher wage level and living standard than would have been economically possible without aid from the West Twenty years after the breakdown of the iron curtain and the reunification of Germany the infrastructure in the Eastern part of the country is en par with the West The East German wage level remains only slightly lower than the Western level as does productivity but is significantly higher than in neighbouring post communist CEE countries Because of these differences in economic transition it can be expected that East Germany attracts a different kind of foreign direct investment compared to other CEE countries The objective of this dissertation is to empirically identify the factors affecting foreign direct investment into the region and to discuss the implications of the empirical findings for regional and national economic policy The region is represented in this paper by East Germany and three of its Central European neighbour countries the Czech Republic Poland and Hungary The present study is organised as follows A brief historical overview of the four economies transition processes will be given in chapter 2 The theoretical background the methodology and the dataset used are being discussed in section 3 Hypotheses derived from the region s history economic theory and previous literature on foreign direct investment will be presented in section 4 In section 5 they will be tested and the econometric results identifying the factors affecting foreign investors investment decisions in Central Europe will be discussed Finally the main empirical findings and their political implications will be summarised in the concluding chapter

The Oxford Handbook of Land Economics JunJie Wu, 2014-06-20 What do economists know about land and how they know The Oxford Handbook of Land Economics describes the latest developments in the fields of economics that examine land including natural resource economics environmental economics regional science and urban economics The handbook argues first that land is a theme that integrates these fields and second that productive integration increasingly occurs not just within economics but also across disciplines Greater recognition and integration stimulates cross fertilization among the fields of land economics research By providing a comprehensive survey of land related work in several economics fields this handbook provides the basic tools needed for economists to redefine the scope and focus of their work to better incorporate the contemporary thinking from other fields and to push out the frontiers of land economics The first section presents recent advances in the analysis of major drivers of land use change focusing on economic development and various land use markets The second section presents economic research on the environmental and socio economic impacts of land use and land use change The third section addresses six cutting edge approaches for land economics research including spatial econometric simulation and experimental methods The section also includes a synthetic chapter critically reviewing methodological advances The fourth section covers policy issues Four chapters disentangle the economics of land conservation and preservation while three chapters examine the economic analysis of the legal institutions of land use These chapters focus on law and economic problems of permissible government control of land in the U S context

The Raging 2020s Alec Ross,2025-09-23 In the face of unprecedented global change New York Times bestselling author Alec Ross proposes a new social contract to restore the balance of power between government citizens and business in The Raging 2020s For 150 years there has been a contract Companies hold the power to shape our daily lives The state holds the power to make them fall in line And the people hold the power to choose their leaders But now this balance has shaken loose As the market consolidates the lines between big business and the halls of Congress have become razor thin Private companies have become as powerful as countries As Walter Isaacson said about Alec Ross s first book The Industries of the Future The future is already hitting us and Ross shows how it can be exciting rather than frightening Through interviews with the world s most influential thinkers and stories of corporate activism and malfeasance government failure and renewal and innovative economic and political models Ross proposes a new social contract one that resets the equilibrium between corporations the governing and the governed
