Language Intervention Strategies in Adult Aphasia Roberta Chapey,1994 This newly revised and updated Fourth Edition continues to focus on speech therapy addressing concerns that aid in the rehabilitation and recovery of aphasia patients Topics include assessment of language and communication principles of language intervention restorative approaches to language intervention cognitive neuropsychological approach implications functional intervention and treatment for each syndrome Other approaches and therapy for associated neuropathologies of speech and language related functions are also discussed For more information visit <http://connection.LWW.com/go/chapey> Handbook of Children with Special Health Care Needs David Hollar,2012-07-15 Children with chronic conditions developmental disorders and birth defects represent a sizeable minority of American children as many as one in five Often their families have financial or other issues limiting their access to appropriate care thus limiting their adult prospects as well Compounding the problem many valuable resources concerning this population are difficult to access although they may be critical to the researchers practitioners and policymakers creating standards for quality care and services In response the Handbook of Children with Special Health Care Needs assembles research applied and policy perspectives reflecting the range of children's problems requiring special services Widely studied conditions e.g communication disorders substance abuse and those receiving lesser attention e.g tuberculosis are covered as are emerging ideas such as the medical home concept of continuity of care Its interdisciplinary outlook makes the Handbook of Children with Special Health Care Needs a vital forward looking text for developmental psychologists pediatricians early childhood and special education researchers and practitioners disability researchers policymakers and advocates and providers for children with special health care needs Aphasiology Patrick

Doyle,2002-05-02 The First Annual Clinical Aphasiology Conference CAC was convened in Albuquerque in 1971 It was attended by a small group of primarily practicing clinicians dedicated to meeting the human service needs of their clients while recognizing the importance of contributing to the collective knowledge base of their discipline by providing empirical evidence supporting the links between their clinical interventions and outcomes Thirteen years later Barlow Hays and Nelson 1984 would describe in their now seminal publication The Scientist Practitioner an integrated model of applied behavioral research its strategies and methods and the role of the practitioner in the acquisition of knowledge directed toward improving clinical procedures and outcomes By this time 13 Volumes of CAC publications had already been published and comprised the single largest source of applied clinical data addressing the nature of aphasia and its clinical management These documents represented the product of the scientist practitioner model in action prior to its formalization by Barlow et al and provide a rich source of evidence supporting the efficacy of aphasia rehabilitation Unfortunately these and subsequent CAC publications remain unavailable to the larger clinical and scientific community due to their limited distribution Much has changed in the ensuing years Indeed many of the healthcare delivery systems in which aphasia rehabilitation is now practiced in 2002 severely restrict the frequency and duration of clinical services Increasingly practitioners are required to be more accountable for their clinical outcomes and to measure behavioral change in units that represent meaningful differences to consumers Now more than ever it is critical that the scientist practitioner model be promoted in order to better serve individuals with aphasia and to further advance the collective knowledge and evidence base of the discipline Now more than ever the available evidence needs to be disseminated as broadly as possible These goals are in keeping with the mission of CAC as envisioned by its founding members and remain the focused commitment of its many participants steering committee and publication board In keeping with these goals the papers that appear in this special edition of Aphasiology were selected based upon their theoretical importance clinical relevance and scientific merit from among the many platform and poster presentations comprising the 31st Annual Clinical Aphasiology Conference held in Santa Fe New Mexico in 2001 Each paper was peer reviewed by the Editorial Consultants and Associate Editors acknowledged herein consistent with the standards of Aphasiology and the rigours of merit review that represent this indexed archival journal that is accessible to clinicians and scientists all over the world
